

Love Letters From Falcone To Mrs. Daneker Read At Trial

JIM THORPE, Pa., Jan. 20 (AP)—Thirteen love letters written by Daniel Falcone to Mrs. Mildred Daneker were read at tonight's session of the trial of the slaying of Mrs. Daneker.

The 51-year-old Bangor factory foreman is accused of the double slaying of Mrs. Daneker, 36, and her husband, Matthew, 38, Palmerton justice of the peace. The couple was fatally shot on the steps of Trinity E. C. Church in Palmerton last Oct. 3. Falcone was picked up four days later in a wooded section near Wind Gap, 15 miles northeast of Palmerton.

State Police Lt. Stanley Smith of Harrisburg, a handwriting expert, who read the letters, testified that Falcone was the author.

The state contends that the defendant and Mrs. Daneker were involved in an "unfortunate infatuation" and that Mrs. Daneker's efforts to end their friendship led to her death.

Carbon County Dist. Atty. Carl E. Niehoff told the court the state would submit a total of 38 such letters and that the remainder would be read at tomorrow's session. Niehoff said all but one had been found among Mrs. Daneker's effects at her home.

One of the letters, which also was read tonight, was found apparently undelivered in Falcone's car, which was parked near the scene of the slaying.

Lt. Smith was not cross-examined tonight by Defense Counsel Edmund Turtzo. The young lawyer, who is defending his first murder trial, said after tonight's session he would present other letters for his client later in the trial.

The letters, Lt. Smith read tonight were very affectionate in nature. All but the one found in the car were written in 1952.

Several made apparent references to ending their friendship. One read in part:

"Maybe you are getting tired of seeing me around. Maybe I am making a fool of myself. Sometimes I think you are getting tired of me."

And at a later date:

"You are probably forgetting there was ever a fellow named Danny. . . . You had better not forget me. . . . I won't let you. . . . All I hear from you is that we should break it up."

The brief letter found in the glove compartment of the car was dated Jan. 25, 1954 and read:

"Dear Mildred: I am writing you your birthday gift. (here it is). Rest in peace. I will not disturb your peace any longer. I know now that it is for the best. You say you find it hard to respond to his demands. But you are married to him. So I will, as MacArthur said, I will fade away. Please forgive me, Daniel."

Judge James C. McCready, who is hearing the case before a jury of eight men and four women, adjourned the afternoon session to allow Falcone and his attorney to examine the letters.

These were the highlights of testimony during the first three days of the trial:

One—Sgt. Edward H. Carruthers,

Harrisburg State police ballistics expert, said bullets removed from Daneker's body were fired by the revolver taken from Falcone when he was arrested.

Two—The Danekers' son and another youth identified Falcone as the man who shot the couple outside the church.

Three—Mrs. M. E. Deterline, wife of the church pastor, said she heard "a terrifying scream" and looked out the window to see Daneker pushing his wife behind him. Then she heard shooting.

Four—Mrs. Kathryn Day, a Palmerton teacher, said she chatted with the Danekers before entering the church. Then she heard "terrific screams" and went to the door to see what had happened. She said Daneker was standing near the curb. His shirt was bloodstained. He was calling for help. "Another man," she said, was standing four or five feet from Daneker with a gun in his hand. While she watched, he turned and ran down the street. He had a build like Falcone's, she said.

Five—Police Chief W. L. Templeton of Wind Gap said he arrested Falcone in that borough a week after the shooting. Templeton made no reference to the shooting at the time of the arrest.

but, he said, Falcone asked, "Are they both alive?" Templeton answered, "No, Danny, they are both dead," he said. Falcone put his head down and mumbled something on the order of "Oh gosh," the chief added.

Six—Robert Danner, 13, Palmerton, said he watched Falcone shoot Mrs. Daneker, then ducked for cover.

Seven—Rev. Deterline, church pastor, said he saw Daneker trying to protect his wife. Then, he said, a man fired a shot from a crouching position. The preacher went back indoors to call police.

Eisenhower Sees Tax Cut Next Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today "a general, though modest, reduction in taxes" may be enacted next year.

The President held out this prospect in an optimistic review of progress toward a greatly expanded American economy, in his annual economic message to Congress.

He said America now is in the process of vigorous recovery from last year's "mild and brief" recession and:

"With wise management of its national household, our country can within a decade increase its production from the current annual level of about 360 billion dollars to 500 billion, or more, expressed in dollars of the same buying power."

The President's talk of a possible tax cut in 1956—an election year—was more positive than the language he used in his State of the Union and budget messages earlier this month. In those messages, he merely expressed hope that reductions could come about.

Today, Eisenhower said taxes are still a heavy burden and added:

"Lower taxes would tend to encourage work, promote more efficient business practices and create more jobs through new investments."

"Fortunately, with our economy continuing to expand, we can look forward to larger federal revenues from existing tax rates."

"This, together with further economies in expenditures, should make possible next year another step in the reduction of taxes."

"Congress might then consider enacting a general, though modest, reduction in taxes and, at the same time, continue the program which was begun last year of reducing barriers to the free flow of funds into risk-taking and job-creating investments."

He repeated that no tax reductions should be made this year, in the face of a call by some Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee for action to cut everybody's personal income tax.

Eisenhower also repeated his recommendation against letting corporate income and excise taxes take their scheduled drop April 1. House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) took a dig at the Republicans in saying he agrees with Eisenhower that the nation will have continued prosperity—"if they'll just keep in effect the laws we Democrats have enacted during the last 18 years."

Rep. Auerd of Illinois, a House Republican leader, said today's economic report "documents the success of the Eisenhower administration in achieving peace, progress and prosperity."

How Does Parent Feel When Child Gets Polio?

By Margaret Maxwell

"HOW DO YOU feel when you learn that your child has polio?" That question was put to James Stacey of Delaware Water Gap, whose son, Charles, was one of the seven polio cases in Monroe County during the past year.

Stacey thought a moment, then said, "You're stunned at first, then panicky. Your immediate reaction is one of—no, it can't happen to my child. There must be some mistake. However, the results of the laboratory tests are indisputable, and the evidence is right there along with all the symptoms."

"After the initial shock wears off, you start thinking how you are going to cope with the situation—first of all, what can be done for your sick child. In Charles' case, which luckily turned out to be a mild one, we talked with the doctors and decided to take him to a polio center for treatment. We chose the Wilmington (Delaware) Hospital. Normally we might have selected one nearer home, but Mrs. Stacey's parents live in Wilmington and they urged us to bring him down there."

"Meantime the local polio organization swung into action. The same day the story of our misfortune broke in the papers, I received a letter from Joseph Small, head of the local polio chapter, asking me to come and see him. I headed for his Stroudsburg office immediately, and right here and now I can say that that meeting with Small was the one bright spot in that whole day."

"I had some fearful misgivings about those hospital bills looming ahead, but at the same time both Mrs. Stacey and I were determined to see that Charles received every possible kind of care and treatment available. I guess every parent feels the same way."

"I explained to Joe Small that we were not in a financial position to pay immediately a huge sum if it were necessary, but that if it were possible to get help from the Foundation as a loan, we would certainly arrange to pay it back."

"Small smiled reassuringly then said firmly, 'Stop thinking along those lines. The job of the Foundation is to relieve parents of that kind of burdensome worry. The thing you have to do is concentrate on getting your child well. Now, go right ahead with whatever treatment the hospital recommends and send the bills to my office.'"

"As I walked out the door I had an overwhelming sense of relief. Now we were free to see that Charles received the right care without the pressing anxiety of meeting immediate and costly medical bills."

"Meantime, neighbors and friends kept calling us up to offer their help and prayers. There was

Prisoners Reject Plea To Free Men

BOSTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Four embittered, long-term convicts flatly rejected today a two-hour joint plea of a chaplain and the physician of Massachusetts' ancient state prison that they release five hostage guards and surrender.

The refusal led the Rev. Edward F. Hartigan and Dr. Samuel A. Meelin to term the situation "still critical." The guards were seized before daybreak Tuesday.

The convicts also are holding six fellow inmates in a besieged two-cell block used for solitary confinement of incorrigibles.

The desperadoes are: Theodore (Teddy) Green, 39, bank robber and prison escape artist; rapist Joseph Flaherty, 32, cop-slayer; Fritz Swenson, 31, and rubber-gumman Walter Halben, 28.

Dr. Meelin read a joint statement from himself and Father Hartigan which said: "We have not lost hope."

Chief gripe of the rebellious quartet, the statement said, is "their lack of hope because of the extreme long sentences and their inability to look forward to ever being free men even in their old age."

The convicts first demanded a car and a clear road to freedom. The reply of Warden John J. O'Brien was—and still is—there will be "no deals."

Dr. Meelin said of the plea to the prisoners: "We talked long, sanely and deliberately, but in vain."

The convicts seized their hostage guards—who are unarmed—after saving their way out of their solitary cells in the old block known as "Cherry Hill" about 1 a.m. Tuesday.

An alarm was sounded about 5 a.m. that day when several guards failed to report at required intervals. During Tuesday, the four desperadoes released 13 fellow occupants of the solitary section and kept six.

By 10 p.m. today the siege had lasted 65 hours, well under the record of 100 hours set in Jackson, Mich., in 1952.

In that uprising, eight guards were held hostage. None was harmed, but one prisoner was killed before the disturbance ended.

Installment Plan For Court Fines

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 20 (AP)—How would you like to pay court fines on the installment plan?

You can, if it's a large fine, under a plan District Judge Robert W. Hanson will use for six months on an experimental basis.

Often, the judge observed today, the poor man goes to jail while the rich man writes out a check.

Only men with families will be considered for the installment plan, the judge said.

Dr. George Zehner Missing Since Wednesday Afternoon; Last Seen In Stroudsburgs

DR. GEORGE D. ZEHNER of Tannersville has been missing since he drove to Stroudsburg at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday to do some shopping. Family members said he went to the bank to make a deposit, visited the telephone company, and went to two East Stroudsburg stores.

He was in the bank about 2 p. m.

Dr. Zehner failed to return home, and his family said they have had no clue to his whereabouts. State and borough police have been notified.

The doctor is 52, weighs 165 pounds, is 5 feet 7 inches tall. He has dark brown eyes and dark hair, graying at the temples. He wore light tortoise shell glasses, has a slight scar across his forehead.

When he left home he was wearing a light-weight gray worsted suit, blue shirt with white stripes, plaid tie with yellow tinge, black shoes and socks, brown plaid wool vest, light brown felt hat, and light blue-gray topcoat.

He was driving a Dodge Coronet 4-door sedan, a 1949 model, French-gray in color. The license was Pennsylvania 521-SJ, the family said.

Dr. Zehner is a Monroe County native and maintains his practice in Tannersville, where he lives with his wife and two sons.

The family reported Dr. Zehner had been ill for some time from a heart ailment.

Yikiangshan Island Falls To Chinese Reds; Chiang's Airmen Pound Enemy Ships

TAIPEI, Formosa, Friday, Jan. 21 (AP)—Nationalist guerrilla resistance on Yikiangshan Island crumbled last night under a crushing weight of Chinese Red invaders and air and sea blows, official Nationalist reports said today.

The reports said the last shots of the island, were fired at 9 p. m.—8 a. m. EST.

The fall of Yikiangshan, 20 miles off the China mainland, brought the Chinese Reds within gun range of the strategic Tachen Islands 200 miles north of Formosa.

Waves of Nationalist planes attacked Communist shipping yesterday around the Tachens. The Nationalists claimed 44 Red craft sunk, including 9 gunboats.

(Peiping radio asserted the entire garrison, which it put at 1,080 "troops," was killed or captured. It boasted that "the liberation of Yikiangshan Island" was a "clear indication" of Red China's "determined will to liberate Taiwan (Formosa)."

Col. Hsiung En-teh, Defense Ministry spokesman, said 720 guerrillas defended Yikiangshan when 5,500 Red marines landed Tuesday after heavy bombing raids and bombardment from naval guns.

Hsiung estimated the guerrillas killed 1,500 Communist attackers despite a Red bombing and artillery pounding that rivaled the battle for "Heartbreak Ridge" in the Korean War. He conceded that the defenders' casualties also were heavy.

The Communists were reported pouring in more troops and attacking under the covering fire of Red artillery from nearby Tachen and Tienao islands.

The Defense Ministry said the Wednesday air blows were concentrated in the Fochow (Minhow) area some 120 miles northwest of northern Formosa and from 160 to 200 miles south of the Tachens.

Costa Rican Foes Agree On Buffer Zone

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Jan. 20 (AP)—Costa Rica and Nicaragua agreed today on a plan to bottle up hostilities in Costa Rica with a neutral buffer zone astride their common border northwest of the present battle area. The agreement was announced by the Organization of American States peace commission.

The OAS said it had stationed 23 officers in the buffer zone to keep watch over the area. Fourteen officers were dispatched to the Nicaraguan side of the zone and nine to the Costa Rican side.

By its action the commission was not trying to impose a truce or cease-fire, but sought to neutralize the border area in an effort to avoid a wide-open incident between the two countries.

The announcement came as a Costa Rican general staff communiqué said the government's U. S. supplied F51 Mustang fighter planes today strafed La Cruz, main rebel base on the northwest coast, and blasted a rebel convoy on the Inter-American Highway, damaging the convoy heavily.

All four of the fighters just bought from the United States flew today, but only two can go into action at the same time because the pilots have only two helmets of the type necessary for fighting.

Ike Expected To Seek Okay Of Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower was reported tonight to be considering asking Congress for special authority to use U. S. naval and air power to help evacuate Chinese Nationalist troops from some islands along the Red China coast if necessary.

These troops would then be deployed elsewhere for the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores, which the United States is committed to help Chiang Kai-shek hold against the Chinese Reds.

Two congressional leaders, who stipulated that they not be named, said that if the President decides to ask the evacuation authority, he might make the request by Monday. There was some talk he might make it personally to a joint session of Congress, but this was uncertain.

The Chinese Reds have assaulted, and claimed the capture of the little island of Yikiangshan, and are menacing the Tachen Islands, 200 miles north of Formosa, the island bastion of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

But just what islands would be evacuated presumably would be determined by military developments.

Secretary of State Dulles was reported to have told congressional leaders at a briefing session today that the administration would like to have the evacuation authority.

Dulles and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, met with congressional leaders in a closed door session at the State Department for about 90 minutes this morning.

The National Security Council, composed of Eisenhower and top officials, then had a session.

With regard to the use of the resources of the U. S. 7th Fleet, operating in the Formosa Strait, and transport craft for withdrawal of Chinese Nationalist forces from some islands, two problems were said to have been put up to congressional leaders at the meeting with Dulles:

1. Generalissimo Chiang has asked for U. S. help in the Tachen Islands, which have been under Red bombardment and artillery fire. The presumption here is that the kind of help Chiang wants is that which would strengthen the defenses of the island—more planes for air cover, more ammunition and supplies for his American-equipped forces.

But Chiang may have to withdraw from the Tachens, even if American supplies are increased, should Communist pressure become too great. However, he has no facilities for evacuation of the 20,000 or so troops defending these islands and would need American help to get them out.

2. Some of the many island which Chiang holds along the China coast are regarded by American military men as having no real value. American authorities feel that the Nationalist defenses overall could be strengthened if there was a regrouping of Chiang's forces. Here again there is a question of the resources in naval protection and transport facilities to make such a regrouping possible.

These problems were placed before the congressional group today by Dulles and Radford. Persons familiar with the conference said it was made completely clear there was no thought of any wholesale evacuation of Chiang's forces back to Formosa and the Pescadores Islands. On the contrary, authorities said tonight that Chiang has every intention of holding onto strategically important islands, and apparently to the Tachens if he can do so.

Prompt Senate ratification of the Formosa defense treaty was urged by the secretary of state. He told the leaders it would remove any doubt from Chinese Communist minds about this country's determination to defend the island.

VACATION BUREAU BOARD OF GOVERNORS combines bread and business at session last night at Penn-Stroud Hotel. Plans for joint resort promotion efforts were approved by bureau; Eastern Poconos Association; and Top of the Poconos Association. Governors plan to seek additional help from Poconos Vacationland Association. (Staff Photo by Olwyler)

Three Groups Approve Joint Resort Promotion

THREE of the area's four resort associations agreed yesterday to join forces to promote the Poconos.

Approving a joint effort were the Eastern Poconos Association; Top of the Poconos Association; and Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau.

So far, the Pocono Vacationland Association—covering the Barrett area—remains outside the cooperative effort.

The Board of Governors of the Vacation Bureau discussed the situation further at a meeting last night. It was this group's decision to sponsor an additional meeting with the Vacationland members in order that the bureau may feel that that association fully understands the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed plan.

Each of the resort groups was informed of the plan drawn up by the Vacation Bureau during various roundtable discussions in recent weeks.

The aim of the program is to confine all advertising, publicity and promotional work to the bureau as well as the soliciting of funds from purveyors. The associations would operate booths in their own areas.

Harry Ahner Jr., representing the bureau committee which has outlined the program to the various associations, stated the combined plan would make direct contact with 30,000 people in stressing its benefits last night. He commented: "To be at all workable, it is essential that all go along with the program."

The Vacationland organization, which is located in Barrett Township, gave the following reasons for voting against the plan: (1) the inability of resorts to finance an advertising program outside its area; (2) a commitment to publish books for 1955; and (3) it did not feel it wanted to relinquish its individual advertising.

Members of the Vacation Bureau of the Barrett sector will hold a meeting in the near future to which all other resort owners of the township will be invited. Two Bureau Governors, who are also Vacationland members, have agreed to help in making the meeting a success.

The Pike County Association was mentioned as a possible addition for the future. This group is located largely between Bushkill and Milford.

President Henry Arneberg presided at last night's session. He announced a special meeting may be held following the gathering with Barrett resortmen. Arneberg reminded the governors that budget and advertising plans for 1955 are still to be completed.

Doctor Says Ike Needs More Exercise

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower got off to a pleasant start today on his third year as President—encouraged to point and play golf whenever he can.

At a surprise White House ceremony, Vice President Nixon presented him with an anniversary gift from the Cabinet. It was a beautifully bound eight-volume set entitled "The Great Centuries of Painting."

"Wonderful!" said the President. "I certainly am grateful and I might say astonished."

The President's personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, reported the 64-year-old Eisenhower as "in excellent health for a man of his age."

Dr. Snyder's only complaint was that the President hasn't had nearly enough exercise since his golf-almost-every-day vacation in Colorado last October.

"I want him to get out and get enough exercise to keep up his muscle and circulatory tone," the doctor said in an interview.

President Urges Government Check On Private Pensions

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—

President Eisenhower told Congress today the government should carefully study the impact of private pension plans, growing at a fast pace, on the nation's economy.

The President said in his economic report that while private plans for retirement income "appear to be highly desirable, Congress and the executive branch should look into their over-all economic effect."

Eisenhower raised a number of questions which he said should be answered. For instance, he asked, what influence does investing large pension funds have on the stock market and on the supply of venture capital?

There has been considerable discussion pro and con in business circles on this point. The estimated three billion dollars per year being contributed by employees to such plans represents less than one percent of the 250 billion estimated total annual value of goods and services. Yet the pension funds are accumulating fast.

Philadelphia Area Scouts Purchase Large Tract In County

4,000 Acres Bought For Camp Sites

TWO PHILADELPHIA area Boy Scout councils yesterday announced the purchase of 4,000 acres of land in Monroe County as the site for a new camp.

The tract is located at Resica, Middle Smithfield Township, along Route 402 north of Marshall's Creek.

Disclosure was made by Roger S. Firestone, president of the Valley Forge Boy Scout Council, and John S. McQuade, president of the Philadelphia Scout Council.

Overcrowded conditions at the three camps operated by the two councils and a rapidly growing membership made it necessary to acquire the new camp site, the announcement said.

It is planned that ten separate camps will be erected on the property, each to have ten troop-sites. The new property has land located on both sides of Bushkill Creek and includes approximately four miles of the Bushkill, located in one of the best known vacation areas of the state.

Resica Falls, a well known beauty spot, is situated in the center of the property.

Negotiations for the purchase are being completed by attorneys for the councils and for Resica Estate Inc., which took over the property after the death of Thomas Byrne.

Engineering surveys and studies already have been made, although the camps will not be ready for use this Summer. Committees of volunteers have started work on a program for developing and financing the project, according to a spokesman for the councils.

In a joint statement, Firestone and McQuade said:

"We now have 45,329 boys and 17,194 leaders in Philadelphia, Montgomery and Delaware Counties. Because of the growing population we must be prepared to give the boys the chance to experience the adventure and learn to become self-reliant and resourceful, as they do in camp.

"Good citizenship is learned by living together as young men under good leadership."

Camps which have been operated by the two councils are located near Philadelphia. Camp Delmont is for Delaware and Montgomery counties and Treasure Island and Camp Hart are for Philadelphia scouts.

During 1954, 8,318 Boy Scouts and Explorers from the two councils attended Summer camps. Due to limited facilities, this number could be accommodated for an average of only one week per boy.

"The Scout leadership said it believes that at least two weeks per boy are needed to accomplish the objectives of the scout program. The new 4,000-acre camp site will make this possible and will take care of an expected expansion of nearly 100 per cent by 1960, leaders said.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (AP)—Onion futures dropped 16 to 21 cents a 50 pound sack on the Chicago mercantile exchange today in the heaviest dealings in this commodity since trading started in 1942.

Brokers said selling was touched off by an Agriculture Department report placing visible supplies of onions on Jan. 1 at 9,974,000 sacks, which was 600,000 sacks more than trade estimates.

University Of Tulsa Chorus To Give Concert Here Jan. 27 For Benefit Of Varsity E Club

THE UNIVERSITY of Tulsa Chorus will give a concert Thursday night, Jan. 27 in East Stroudsburg Junior High School auditorium.

The concert will benefit the East Stroudsburg Varsity E Club, a non-profit, public service group of alumni from the borough schools. Members of the group are interested in providing services to the school system which might not otherwise be given.

One such example of Varsity E showmanship and fund-raising was shown last year when the club staged a giant "Festival of Lights." Proceeds were used to help pay for a modern, fully-equipped lighting system for the high school stadium.

In next week's concert, local music lovers will be given a chance to hear a college choral group which has achieved a unique professional rating.

Unlike many college groups, which stick close to campus and sing "just for fun," this young organization has a sponsored radio series on CBS affiliate station KTUL in Tulsa, Okla. and a full schedule of holiday bookings on five other Tulsa stations as well as on KOTV the television station in that city.

A Spring tour of the East coast is climaxed by a coast-to-coast broadcast from the studios of the American Broadcasting Company in New York City.

The ABC appearance will be made after the chorus has completed its regular school year. The group has appeared on the national network every year since 1950 as part of the "kick-off" for National Music Week.

The Tulsa chorus has an enviable reputation for high standards and brilliant technique. Director Arthur Hestwood demands sound musicianship and a willingness to work hard, it might be added—on the part of every singer in the group.

Hestwood schedules a minimum of five one-hour rehearsals each week. Each rehearsal is conducted in the campus radio station studios, so that members of the chorus acquire early a knowledge of microphone techniques, the importance of tonal balance and the ability to go back and over a line or phrase until it satisfies their director.

All the rehearsals are tape recorded so that the students may hear "playbacks" of their work, analyze their own mistakes and learn to avoid them.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at Metzgar's market, Tannersville; Pocono Sports Shop, Cresco; Tweedie's Stroud Manor, Ansonia; Huffman's Store, Stroudsburg; Paul Lloyd Sporting Goods, East Stroudsburg; Don Summa barber shop, East Stroudsburg; Lantz Store, East Stroudsburg.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at the Lanterman funeral home with Rev. Harold C. Eaton officiating. Interment will be in St. Paul's Reformed Church Cemetery, East Stroudsburg. The viewing will be held Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the funeral home.

Involuntary Manslaughter Charge Against Floyd Hay Is Dismissed At Hearing

FLOYD HAY, 60, Tannersville, was cleared yesterday of an involuntary manslaughter charge filed after the death of a bike-riding schoolgirl last summer.

The girl, Mary Catherine McLaughlin, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franks, Arlington Heights, was killed in a collision with Hay's car on Route 611 near her home last June 17.

The hearing, held yesterday at the office of Justice of the Peace Floyd Kellogg, Stroudsburg, was part of a move to clean up cases which still were pending when Justice William N. Walton died in office.

Kellogg was appointed to replace Walton last September.

In yesterday's hearing at 2 p.m. the prosecution witness was Pfc. Evan R. Chaplin of Stroudsburg barracks. Hay was represented by Arlington W. Williams.

At the time of the accident Hay told Chaplin he was driving south on Route 611 about 35 miles an hour, in the right lane. Hay said the girl was riding her bicycle south on the shoulder at the right side of the highway. She then veered across to the center lane.

Hay sounded his horn as he approached to signal that he was going to pass in the right lane, Chaplin said. But as he drew close the girl suddenly swerved back to the right and into the side of the car.

The girl's head struck the rear vision mirror jutting out from the driver's door, and the spotlight fastened there too. Her skull was fractured.

After filing of the charge, Hay remained free on $2,500 bail.

The case was dismissed by Kellogg yesterday for insufficient evidence.

In another case re-prosecuted this week, Lawrence Buzzard, Stroudsburg RD2, was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Buzzard was arrested May 29 last year after a collision with George Manhart of Mauch Chunk (now Jim Thorpe, Pa.).

Buzzard pleaded guilty of the charge at this week's hearing, and was freed for court on bond.

In a third re-prosecution Kenneth A. Meisell of Stokes Mill Rd. waived to the grand jury on a charge of aggravated assault and battery.

He was freed on $500 bond.

The charge was filed by Paul T. Gallo, who was a next-door neighbor of Meisell's. Gallo charged Meisell, during an argument, beat him with a three-foot piece of galvanized iron pipe, permanently crippling Gallo's left elbow and injuring him severely.

Thirteen Hour Work Day

Governor George M. Leader arose Wednesday morning to face the unhappy task of leading his state out of a deep tangle of taxation problems. The tumult and the shouting inevitably attendant on his inauguration was ended, and some of the "captains and kings" had departed—leaving the new governor to start out with a 13 hour day of work.

The youthful new chief executive of Pennsylvania by his own statement in the inaugural address anticipates the necessity of discovering some half a billion dollars in tax money in order to balance the budget.

That is not small change, and the Governor, members of his new cabinet, and most of the General Assembly members will have to approach the difficult problem with intense and thoughtful study and with the knowledge that one can never get something for nothing.

Just what segment of the taxpayers is to be touched most heavily in the forthcoming search for the needed funds to keep our Commonwealth solvent remains to be seen.

Historic Test

"Underway on nuclear power!"

This simple but dramatic message flashed from the bridge of the Nautilus, first atomic-powered submarine in world history, this week introduced a new chapter in naval experience as the prototype of more such undersea boats to come moved out into Long Island Sound from its New London base to undergo a series of surface tests.

The extraordinary craft, looking like any conventional submarine as it cast off its lines and moved into the Thames River en route to open water, may well revolutionize the strategy of the Navy and assuredly will do so for the submarine service.

Quite properly the Navy Department will not release all the details of the Nautilus

But without a doubt, the historic screams of anguish from any taxable element in the state will rise loud and clear above the Capitol dome.

One of the new Governor's first acts was to issue a call on every department head to make an immediate survey designed to cut the "fat" out of operations, particularly unnecessary jobs. If he achieves anything in this move, he will have gone a long way toward getting down o a solid budget basis.

The young man from York is a man of courage and intense desire to service his fellow Pennsylvanians.

We wish him well as he assumes the unenviable chore of directing a divided legislature, and we are confident he will do the best he can despite interruptions, interference and doubtless attempted dictation by some senior leaders of his party.

The mechanics of Democratic control has been set in motion.

And, so to work on a tremendous responsibility which will undoubtedly take many, many thirteen hour work days.

My America

Spiritual Awakenings Keyed To Unused Bibles

One of the year-end soothsayers noted with satisfaction that much of the world seems on the verge of a great spiritual awakening.

"The vast throngs which turn out for meetings of Billy Graham and other great evangelists both in America and abroad demonstrate that people are aware of the need for religion as they never have been before," he said.

"More and more people are turning to God and church in this troubled atomic age. This provides a heartening outlook for the New Year . . . It may save the world."

I sincerely hope the man is right. The statistics on increased church membership give him support and it seems to me that I, too, have observed signs of growing recognition of the need for divine guidance as we stumble through the atomic maze.

But I also come across some indications that we should be careful not to read too much encouragement into those signs. Like the "For Sale" ad I saw in the classified section recently, which said:

"Beautiful large King James Bible, $30 value, half price. Never used."

I don't say whoever put that ad in is drifting away from the spiritual values. But evidently he hasn't been too zealous a member of the fold for some time.

"Never used" Bibles are telltale symptoms of a state of mind that is badly in need of a "spiritual awakening." And if Bibles are selling at half price I'm inclined to be dubious about the depth and magnitude of any apparent new awareness of the need for religion. The development would seem a little short on steam for saving the world.

I'd feel better if I saw an ad reading: "Wanted—Used Bible. Will pay premium for any copy still legible." That would indicate a spiritual awakening that was a spiritual awakening.

And none too soon, either, I might say. I personally have a sneaking suspicion that if we don't very soon witness something like a stampede back to basic spiritual values we're never going to get this atomic age off the ground. It's risky business to entrust the custody of H-bombs to a generation that doesn't have a pretty strong feeling for the brotherhood of man and the limitations of human wisdom.

I hope a resurgence of that feeling is really in progress but I haven't too much faith in attendance at meetings as a dependable yardstick for measuring it. That's a little like gauging the effectiveness of a character-building agency by the number of doughnuts it serves in the course of a year.

An epidemic of good, earnest Bible reading would be more significant and heartening. A society that can put together a hydrogen bomb should be able to do something with those 2000-year-old blueprints for the good life—which also were "never used" as much as they ought to be.

Ryukyu Islands Remain Under Military Control

Washington, Jan. 21—President Eisenhower had made a highly significant decision regarding one of the most strategic American strongholds in the Far East.

The Ryukyu Islands, of which Okinawa is the largest and best known, will continue under military control.

The State Department favored civilian rule. But after lengthy deliberation and largely because of Red China's persistent aggressions and provocations, the President sided with his military advisers that administrative authority over the Ryukyu chain remain in their hands.

Word of this far-reaching step has been officially conveyed to Speaker Sam Rayburn, Tex.

It was done in a letter from Army Secretary Robert Stevens, who was designated to handle the legislation that will be necessary to implement the President's decision. The proposed law will be based on Article 3 of the Japanese peace treaty, giving the U. S. certain rights on these Islands.

Stevens stressed two reasons for prompt congressional action: (1) To strengthen American defenses on this vital outpost; (2) provide proper care and other measures for the Ryukyuan people.

Following are highlights of Stevens' unannounced letter to Speaker Rayburn:

"The interests of the U. S. in the Ryukyu Islands is dictated by strategic military considerations of the highest importance. Consequently, the President has determined that the task of administering these Islands should be assigned to the Department of Defense. This assignment is necessitated by the inextricable linking of civilian and military functions there. In the tightly-constricted area of the Ryukyus virtually all activities and policies of the native government directly affect military planning and operations.

"The proposed legislation would formalize existing arrangements for assuring continued effective performance of the basic military mission, and would also establish in broad outline U. S. objectives for the conduct of the civil administration. It is the view of the Department of Defense that continued effective operation of the military installations on the Ryukyu Islands can best be assured by the enactment, as a matter of priority, of this legislation."

Under this measure, a U. S. High Commissioner would be appointed. He would be directly responsible to the Secretary of Defense.

Deer Study Valuable To Sportsmen

—by H. G. Heller

History of Pennsylvania's deer has been of tremendous interest to hunters, conservationists and the tourists who pour into Pocono Mountains since the early days of this century. Other States have profited from the Commonwealth's pioneering and experiences in bringing back its once-depleted herd.

The story has been: almost no deer in 1900, too many in the late 30's, a serious overbreeding of the State's forests, and a decline in numbers because of this food shortage. Occasional deer studies had been made and considerable was known about the changes which brought about this reduction in the herd, but scientific management called for more facts.

Since 1947, Stanley E. Forbes, graduate of Penn State U with a Master's Degree in Wildlife Management, has been studying the State's deer and conditions affecting them. In collecting data and specimens valuable to the project he has received much cooperation from other research personnel, field officers of the commission and sportsmen.

Forbes' annual report, dated July 1951, contains information based almost wholly on records and evidence submitted. While most persons believe hunting season will represent total mortality to deer in any year, the researcher found that in 12 months ending June 30, 1951, over 6,000 deer were killed in other ways than by bullets or arrows. They met death on highways, were killed for crop damages, died as fawns running into fences, or were destroyed by dogs. Despite the mild 1953-54 winter, 2,500 died of malnutrition. Total does not include those found and not reported, or illegal kills. So it becomes apparent deer kill report would have to be increased considerably beyond hunting season figures to show total mortality in any year.

Here are Forbes' figures for the period of his report: Total legal deer kill in '53; legal antlerless kill 37,384; legal antlerless kill 16,252; number killed out of season 2,214 males, 3,794 females and 200 with sex unreported, for a 6,208 total. Some 2,500 died from malnutrition, making total mortality for the 12-month period at least 62,164. But in another way, 86.3 per cent of his total made up the open season kill; 13.7 per cent of deer deaths was attributed to miscellaneous causes.

From this total mortality for the year, Forbes is able to figure the annual rate of reduction for both antlered bucks and antlerless deer.

* And from this, he is able to compute the total number of deer still alive in the spring and predict the coming fawn crop.

It also adds up that it is vitally important the Commission receive all this information from sportsmen and others to scientifically control hunting seasons through the setting of proper seasons. Facts plus intelligent interpretation makes for good hunting afford to risk, people with Government Bonds and savings in the Banks, people with life insurance, people with emergency reserves in one form or another—should be encouraged to become shareholders.

In other words, don't buy stocks with rent money. Or you'll wind up with a suite in the poorhouse.

The story of Wall Street is replete with fascinating episodes concerning financial wizardry. There has never been a shrewder trader than Bernard Baruch. Nevertheless, the assistance of a powerful "lady" was essential to one of his dazzling coups: Lady Luck . . . At the turn of the century Baruch made extensive investments in Amalgamated Copper. Shortly after buying he concluded the security was overpriced and commenced selling. He had peddled a small portion when he received a call from his mother-in-law, reminding Baruch that it was a religious holiday and she expected him home. Without a word he departed and spent the day with his family—cutting himself off from all communication with business associates. The stock continued dipping. His associates vainly sought to reach him by phone so that he could sell. By early afternoon, however, Amalgamated Copper declared a dividend and the stock skyrocketed.

When Baruch returned to his office the following day he was a million dollars richer.

There's Always Been Teen-Agers And They've Always Presented Some Problems

This is a fact: There have always been teen-agers and they have always presented problems to their parents. Sometimes we parents forget that we were once teen-agers and that we learned by crawling and toddling, and that we were surprised when we discovered our bodies and even more so when we found that curious instrument of personality, the mind.

I sometimes hear conversations among very bright teenage girls on their families and the families of their friends and I discovered a secret: They do not like divorced parents because they think it unfair and unjust and as one girl put it, a lousy trick.

My ears pricked up because I knew that some of these young ladies had far more direct knowledge and experience with the subject than I ever could have. What, for instance, is the responsibility of a father who has brought three children into the world, enjoyed their company for years, played with them, and then dumps them just as they are maturing and need him most? Some of my young friends ask me that.

He, of course, has to live his own life and cannot possibly endure his wife another day. He will give her anything she wants, if she will only go to Reno or Chihuahua or Mexico City, and get a divorce, accusing him of mental cruelty but not mentioning his paramour whose adulteries he must carefully protect. I was once told by a young lady that her father's passion for his fourth wife was wearing thin because she, the child, had discovered him in improprieties with a person whose name she mentioned. I wondered, at the time, whether she was confiding in me or whether she thought that I was a legman for Walter Winchell and hoped that I might give him the juicy item. I heard an intelligent young lady refer to her ex-father, as she put it, as a bum.

We blame the teen-agers for too much when we elders cause them such pain and set them such a horrible example. The more the child adores the father, the worse the moral shock when the father deserts the household. For it is not his wife whom he leaves but his children. The wife may, on the rebound, find a friend, as the expression is, but the children have lost their illusions. The great big, friendly fellow, who played with trains and brought dolls at Christmas time, has turned out to be a creep.

And there is another thing I learn from many teen-agers: They hate to see their parents drunk. This is a double-edged evil because while the children abominate drunken parents, they do imitate them, and many fathers and mothers, I am sure, would be surprised to know how their children spike their so-called soft drinks. I heard of a young fellow who was selling "spikes" for a nickel a shot out of an eyedropper.

Children in broken homes are of several kinds, but those I find most exciting are the little ones whose imaginations run riot over the intrigues, the adulteries, the recriminations among their proliferating parents. As the fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, known and unrecognized, multiply, they live through it all excited, stimulated, almost boastful. They somehow manage to know details which ordinarily are behind closed doors.

What all this does to their minds, I do not know, but I have come across some children who are masterful blackmailers, using parent against parent, to get what they want. They know that parent-love is not dead and they exploit what there is of it to satisfy their cravings. Some of them are undoubtedly double-agents, selling household secrets for some trifling advantage.

I have never encountered a single one of these children who is happy about the divorce. I have never met one who does not blame either the father or mother or both. I have met some who are especially cruel to the mother because they know that the mother will not give up her child no matter what the child does.

With divorce so prevalent in this country, it is necessary, I am sure, to think a little about the children who are romantically brought into the world only to be left to their own devices at the wrong age.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

Peace Gets Another Kayo—It may be all publicity, but the public rates the reported war between Marilyn Monroe & 20th Century Fox as away out ahead of the Costa Rica-Nicaragua disturbance and does not even concede a photo finish to Moscow's warning to NATO or the Formosa-Red China fighting. If the war is on the level the results can be world-shaking. It can throw the American home into disorder, arraying brother against brother and sister against sister. There is no telling how far a Monroe-Fox war could spread or how disastrous it could be to world peace.

To our war correspondent, K. Preston Waffle, it looks even . . . Fox is strong, has enormous forces and is not without ample armaments . . . Monroe is admittedly in perfect form and is reported experimenting with secret weapons . . . She is mobile and has reserves . . . Indeed she can call on units in millions of homes, all ready to respond to a call to arms from her . . . "There it," says Mrs. Waffle, "a terrific Monroe Fifth Column, or under ground. Fox knows this and is reported ready to use the new Nike rockets to bring her down if there is no other way . . . "There is even an SBMA (Stand By Marilyn Alliance)," he continued. "This calls for support if she is attacked, and vice versa. The Moscow attitude is not clear, but Moscow is paid to favor a West Monroe and an East Monroe. England favors Marilyn, but Churchill has made no promise to fight for her on the beaches, on the streets, etc." . . . We just phoned President Eisenhower. He said, "I haven't read the communiques in this Monroe-Fox clash, but I have had the facts in a general way from Mamie. I urge the nation to keep cool. Whether it is easier to keep cool with Fox or Marilyn is a matter for Congress to decide."

Fifteen airplanes and a ship load of other weapons were bought by Nicaragua from Sweden, which got them as surplus from the United States . . . This is a roundabout way for Uncle Sam to get a headache, even with Scandinavian rights . . . Senator McClellan, who wasn't exactly vigorous in digging for facts in the TV probe last May, seems to have had a real change of heart . . . He makes these statements: "I may very well reopen the Fort Monmouth case." "I hope to find out if the Perez

Will Peiping Gamble For Bigger Stakes?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

SO LONG as Peiping interprets United States policy as meaning nonintervention for defense of anything but the Pescadores and Formosa itself, it can proceed to present its home front with victory after victory.

Island after island can be "liberated." The present day Formosa will be conquered for Red China gains substance. The Red Chinese need not, for a long time to come, give any indication that they intend to stop short of the Pescadores and Formosa out of respect for the U.S. 7th Fleet.

Such a string of victories and "liberations" would be important to Red China internal propaganda. It can offer conquests of the islands and defiance of the United States in exchange for public belittling so that Peiping's armies can become more and more mighty.

The conquests are important for Peiping's external propaganda, too. Peiping's claim to be the dominant power in Asia is buttressed. So is the claim to recognition as the rightful representative of the Chinese people in the United Nations. That organization can do little but appeal the Red Chinese not to risk plunging Asia—and possibly the world—into a major war.

If the Peiping decision to invade Yikiangshan was in the nature of a test, to determine what Western reaction might be, the Red Chinese now have their answer:

The United States will not defend the outlying islands.

The reaction in Britain and elsewhere in the non-Communist world was tinged with fear that the island fighting might lead to something far more grave. President Eisenhower's suggestion that the U.N. step in to preserve peace in the Orient seemed to have been received with a sigh of relief. All this bespeaks the extreme reluctance of the Western powers to become involved in the shooting.

But all this also gave the green light to Peiping. There seems nothing in the way of the Chinese Red army now if it wants to launch a long campaign of island-hopping until all but the Pescadores and Formosa are in Communist hands. The threat to Formosa will remain as Peiping's biggest bludgeon in its intercourse with the Western world.

Peiping appears to have gambled and won at this point. The official U.S. position on the invasion could hardly be described as strong. And although Peiping, too, may be in deadly fear of a major war, its position will not be made any the less strong if the Western world must live with the fateful question: Will the Red Chinese, successful in one gamble, try it again for bigger stakes?

Joint Chiefs Recommend U. S. Seventh Fleet Provide Logistic Support For Nationalists

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—The Chinese Nationalists are urgently seeking emergency help to maintain the supply lines of gravely-periled Tachen Island.

They want the direct logistic support of the U. S. Seventh Fleet.

Supplying the fiercely-belonged garrison may determine the fate of this Nationalist stronghold, the farthest from Formosa. Tachen is 225 miles northwest of Taipei and only 22 miles off the Chinese mainland.

The desired logistic aid could lead to American involvement in the tense battle against the Red offensive.

That is due to the Communists' air dominance in this combat zone.

They have been using this superiority with telling effect against Nationalist supply lines. That's the reason for Formosa's plea for assistance.

In the past ten days the Reds, through a combination of air and sea attacks, have destroyed three large Nationalist supply vessels and inflicted other serious disruptions of the supply lines to Tachen.

Admiral Arthur Radford favors providing the Nationalists with logistic support.

The head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has recommended that to both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles, even though it may lead to armed clashes between the Seventh Fleet and the attacking Reds.

Radford heartily concurs in the Nationalist view that Tachen Island is necessary for the defense of Formosa.

The Communists' latest attack is this area was not expected for a few weeks. It was known they were mounting an amphibious assault, but not at this time. The Reds had one foothold on the Tachen group, a small island they captured in a surprise blow last spring.

Main purpose of their latest attack is to increase Nationalist difficulties in supplying their main Tachen garrison. The Communists can now bring it under direct artillery fire. The force has an estimated strength of more than 20,000.

The unannounced Nationalist request for logistic help by the Seventh Fleet has no connection with the recently-negotiated mutual defense treaty. That pact has not been ratified by the Senate; it is pending there. Until the agreement is approved by the Senate, it has no legal effect. The Nationalists are asking for aid under the U. S. guarantee to safeguard the independence of Formosa.

Note: In the past week, Admiral Radford has made two private speeches in which he expressed the belief that the U. S. will have to fight to defend Formosa. The two talks were delivered to important service schools, and both were carefully not publicized.

Ban On Alcohol, Pets Rescinded

HOPEWELL, Va., Jan. 20—A controversial order banning alcoholic beverages and pets from two local housing projects has been canceled by the Hopewell Redevelopment and Housing Authority.

The order, issued earlier this month by project manager Ernest J. Connelly, a Sunday School teacher and former junior college history instructor, was rescinded by the Authority after a closed session this week.

Connelly said terms of the tenants' leases banned immoral and illegal conduct and he called liquor drinking immoral. He said he felt the 198 families "needed someone to take care of them." His order also specified that tenants could not use light bulbs stronger than 60 watts.

SECRETARY OF STATE John Foster Dulles told a press conference in Washington that the United States does not intend to fight to defend the Island of Yichang from the Chinese Communists. Dulles added that he did not think that either Yichang or the Tachen Islands are essential to the defense of Formosa or the Pescadores Islands. Sanford Henry Dies At Home In Paradise

SANFORD Henry, 86, died in his Paradise Township home yesterday at 4:30 p.m.

It was the house in which he was born and where he had spent his entire life. He was the son of the late William and Elizabeth Becker Henry.

The farm where he lived was bought by his father and uncle. The elder Henry cleared off a part of the acreage and turned it into farming land.

Sanford Henry was the last member of his direct family. He attended Keokee Chapel in Paradise; served as a school director, road supervisor and fire warden for many years.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. George Bogert, Cresco RD1; Mrs. Mildred Friday, Quakertown and Lula Henry, at home; a step-daughter, Mrs. Everett Ross, Butler, N. J.; three sons, William B. Wesley R. and S. Newkirk, all of Cresco, RD1; 14 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2:30 in Dunkelberger and Westbrook funeral home, Rev. Charles F. Spangenberg will officiate.

Interment will be made in Keokee Chapel Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday after 7 p.m.

Dr. Sheppard Attends Rites For Father

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20 (AP)—"Is that him? Is that Dr. Sam?" A little blonde woman, her head wrapped in a scarf against a biting wind, stood on tiptoe and pointed across a picket fence at the tall, sombre man walking into the funeral home.

Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, 31, convicted wife slayer, was going to the funeral of his father—his second parent to die within two weeks.

Today, as has been his lot since the body of his wife Marilyn was found in her bed last July 4, he was the target of the eyes of the curious and the morbid, and the newsmen and photographers who stood outside the mortuary to record his grief.

His father, 61-year-old Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, died Tuesday night from an acute respiratory ailment, which started while Sheppard still was on trial last month. Two weeks ago, on Jan. 7, his mother, Ethel, 64, fired a bullet into her head. She left a note saying: "I just can't manage any longer without dad." Her husband was in a hospital at the time.

Private rites for the elder Sheppard were held in a suburban Lakewood funeral home. In an effort to avoid the huge crowds which gathered about the mortuary during his wife's funeral, the time of the services today was not published.

But about 50 persons, in addition to some 20 newsmen and photographers, showed up.

The little blonde woman who pointed over the fence at the side of the mortuary grounds was typical of the spectators.

"I just wanted to see Dr. Sam. After all this publicity and everything . . ." she trailed off her explanation to a reporter.

Dr. Sheppard, although his face was sad, did not break down either outside the mortuary or at the cemetery. Reporters were not per-

Eisenhowers Omit McCarthys From Dinner Invitation Lists

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Eisenhowers omitted Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and his wife from the invitation lists for two state dinners this week, the White House disclosed today.

The Wisconsin Republican, who has been increasingly outspoken in his criticism of President Eisenhower lately, was the only retiring chairman of a Senate committee who did not get a bid to one of the two White House affairs held on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree, the first lady's secretary, said the omission was because of a "decision by the President and Mrs. Eisenhower."

McCarthy laughed aloud when a reporter asked him about it on the telephone, but he declined to comment.

The Senate voted 67-22 last Dec. 2 to condemn Charles of the White House's official conduct. Four days later the Wisconsin Republican assailed Eisenhower in what looked like a burn-the-bridges break with the administration.

A dinner honoring Vice President Nixon was held at the White House Tuesday night and one for Rep. Rayburn (D-Tex.), the new speaker of the House, took place last night. Senior members of Congress were among the guests.

The absence of McCarthy and his wife on both occasions aroused a good deal of speculation. McCarthy was chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee during the last session of Congress and also headed its investigations subcommittee.

State Leases, Contracts To Be Reviewed

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20 (AP)—Gov. George M. Leader hammered on a new economy theme today. He directed his department heads to review contracts for excessive rentals and costly construction work involving state facilities.

"I direct you to review all leases and incomplete contracts entered by your department or on behalf of your department," the Leader memorandum said. "This is to be done in order to achieve possible renegotiation or cancellation of such leases or contracts when more favorable conditions are indicated."

The directive—the third in three days—said the Commonwealth has been "considerable committed" to the rental of buildings and equipment.

It added that many construction contracts involve "large, long-term financial obligations" of the Commonwealth.

Earlier, Leader asked department heads to squeeze 20 million dollars out of the expiring Republican budget.

He suggested that salary increases given in the dying days of the administration of Republican Gov. John S. Fine be rescinded if they are unjustified.

Leader also demanded from his cabinet that new hirings be deferred unless it is absolutely necessary to maintain the job.

The new governor, who recently said a half billion dollars in new taxes is needed to balance the budget, also has directed departmental comptrollers to watch all expenditures.

The economy drive will continue, Leader indicated, on a permanent basis.

He gave department heads until Jan. 31 to make a personal report to him on what economies have been achieved since he took office on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Gerald A. Gleason, the new revenue secretary, said enforcement of the sales tax will continue until the law expires Sept. 1.

"The department of revenue will try to collect every penny of tax due the Commonwealth," Gleason said.

22 Graduate At College Exercises

TWO MONROE County students were among 22 young men and women who received degrees in mid-year commencement exercises at State Teachers College yesterday morning.

Jerrold E. Fritz, Saylorsburg, and Jill Strauser Alves, East Stroudsburg, received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education in the 10 a.m. ceremony in the college auditorium.

Dr. Henry Klonower, director of teacher education in the Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg was the main speaker. He discussed current rules of certification for teaching and the prospects for graduating teachers.

Rev. John A. Bollier, Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation and benediction. College president Joseph F. Noonan conferred degrees upon the 22 students.

The college glee club sang two selections—"In This Our Time" and "America—Our Heritage."

Father Tells How Parents Feel When Child Gets Polio

"Of course Charles was in the Wilmington hospital for several weeks, and I hate to think of our phone bill! We kept the wire hot with calls to the hospital, and to Mrs. Stacey's parents. All reassured us that Charles was coming along fine.

"The only signs of paralysis were in his right foot and leg muscles, and they were responding to treatment remarkably well. When could we bring him home? Well, we were just like any other parents with that question, and finally after three weeks the doctors said he was ready to be dismissed from the hospital. That was indeed a day for celebration for the whole family!"

"The difficulty with polio is that it requires lengthy treatment after the acute stage is past. Charles was well enough to come home, but the doctors told us he must continue with the physiotherapy treatments for some time to come. As a matter of fact, he is still taking them, four months after the first diagnosis of polio was made late last September.

"I wonder if people here realize what fine physiotherapy treatments are available here at the Monroe County General Hospital under therapist Robert P. Ludgate? I must confess we didn't even know there was a physiotherapy division to the hospital until a few months ago. The chief problem in polio is exercise, but it has to be guided and directed by an expert. The injured muscles are taught to function again, or, in more serious cases, substitute muscles are taught to do the job of the injured ones.

"It is a tedious process, requiring tact and skill on the part of the teacher, and patience on the part of the subject and parents. Patients don't recover miraculously overnight from polio. It's a long pull, but we're thankful the worst is past and that we can now look forward to the time when Charles will be just as active as the other kids around the block.

"In former years we took our contributions to the Mothers March of Dimes in stride—turning on the porch light if we remembered it. This year, however, it is different for our family. Mrs. Stacey will be one of those marching mothers, while I will be anxiously eyeing every porch in town, hoping our neighbors and friends will remember to turn on their lights when the fire siren sounds Tuesday night. I hope everybody in Monroe County will help with their dimes and dollars to fight this dread disease. You never know when it is going to strike in your home. We found out that it could happen to us, and we are eternally grateful to the Foundation for all its wonderful help, and above all, the friendly reassurance that we could count on it to see us through."

MINISINK HILLS — Two Portland boys suffered face cuts and bruises when their car ran off the highway and struck a tree here at 12:05 a.m. yesterday.

They were Daniel J. Barr, 17, and Harvey Lyons, 18. Barr told Stroudsburg troopers he lost control while driving around a curve. The car ran onto the Charles Frayley property and hit the tree.

Three Girls And Woman Die In Fire

CHESTER, Jan. 20 (AP)—Three little sisters and the elderly woman who was caring for them while the parents were away on a brief vacation suffocated today in a fire that destroyed a $30,000 ranch home in nearby Wallingford.

The dead children in the tragic blaze were Stephanie Spencer, 7; Selby, 6, and Hilarie, 3.

Killed with them in the smoke-filled bedrooms in which all were sleeping was Mrs. Nellie Wingate, 62, of Media. The parents — Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Spencer Jr., vacationing in Atlantic City — had never been away from their children overnight before.

The Spencers went to the shore Monday. The mother was recovering from an illness. The father is an executive of a Chester printing firm.

The Commonwealth tries to do its share toward safety. Main roads are kept clear of snow, grades and curves are cindered. But quick freezes and thaws cannot be controlled.

You, the driver, must provide most of your own safety. Chains give you better traction to help prevent skidding, and so do special treads on your tires. But nothing takes the place of slower speed and greater alertness.

Utilize these two factors to get you through the thick and thin of winter driving without accidents.

This message in the interest of highway safety is one of a series prepared and disseminated by the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association and the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue.

Series Of Merger Steps Designed To Bring Protestant Groups Toward Closer Unity

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Work is humming today to put broken-up churches back together again.

In some cases, the mending job is proving to be a tough one. But numerous projects gradually are closing the gaps.

Twenty Protestant denominations currently are involved in unity efforts. Of these, 13 are taking active steps toward mergers. If these are achieved, the result will be five newly combined bodies.

"There is a world sense of growing together," said veteran Lutheran leader Dr. J.A. Aasgaard, of Minneapolis. "We can't go it alone, any more than nations."

Here are the chief merger moves now going on:

1. The Congregational Christian Churches, with 1,284,000 members, and the Evangelical and Reformed Church, with 762,000, are engaged in steps leading toward a two-million-member United Church of Christ.

2. Four Lutheran bodies are to vote at conventions this year on a constitution for a single, unified body of 1,800,000 members, which would make it the third largest Lutheran church.

3. A plan to unite the three branches of Presbyterianism was turned down this week in a vote among Southern Presbyterians. It was believed likely, however, that a revised unity formula would be attempted in the future.

4. The Unitarian and Universalist churches last year acted to merge some activities—education, publications and public relations—as a step toward a unified, 164,000-member liberal council of churches.

5. Two other smaller Lutheran bodies—the 32,000-member Finnish Evangelical Lutheran Church (Synod) and the 8,000-member National Evangelical Lutheran Church—are discussing possible union.

But beyond these immediate projects is a broad long-range program aimed at ultimate unity of nine bodies with about 16 million members, and including some of the country's largest denominations.

Launched six years ago by the Conference on Church Union, work on the plan has gone on steadily, and early this month, a master blueprint for a "basis of union" was completed.

Methodist Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, of St. Louis, a leader in the project, termed the document "one of the great papers in the history of the Protestant movement in this country."

It is, he said, the first, specific outline for unity "that has been drawn in 50 years of conversation."

Participating are representatives of these denominations: Methodist, Presbyterian U. S. A. (Northern), Presbyterian U. S. A. (Southern), Congregational Christian, Disciple of Christ, Evangelical and Reformed, Colored Methodist Episcopal, African Methodist Episcopal, and the Council of Community Churches.

The Protestant Episcopal Church also is taking part as an observer. If these bodies eventually get together, it would produce the greatest consolidation of Protestant force yet.

For the last half century, there has been a strong trend among Protestants toward reunion. In that period, mergers involving more than 70 separate bodies have occurred.

Biggest of these was the reunion in 1939 of the Methodist Church, which had been split North and South since the Civil War. With nine million members, it is now the nation's largest Protestant church.

Besides the various merger moves now in process, other churches also are carrying on tentative negotiations. The American Baptists and the Disciples of Christ have working commissions on the subject.

Local Women At Luncheon For Japan Christian U.

MRS. ERNEST H. WYCKOFF, 514 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, and her guests, Mrs. Nelson Beers, Mrs. C. R. Bensinger, Mrs. Edward Hess, Mrs. J. A. LeBar, Mrs. Claude Leister, Mrs. J. J. Newberry and Mrs. A. M. See were in New York City yesterday where they attended a luncheon at the Commodore Hotel for the International Christian University near Tokyo, Japan.

The luncheon, at which more than 600 attended, was sponsored by the National Women's Planning Committee of The Japan International Christian University Foundation in New York.

Principal speaker at the women's gathering was Mrs. Elizabeth Gray Vining, author and former tutor to the Crown Prince of Japan. She spoke about the young people in Japan and related some of the highlights of her four years in that country as the personal tutor of Prince Akihito.

Mrs. Paul Moser, who headed the first National Council of Women's Organizations of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., followed the address with a challenge entitled, "Our Part in Japan."

The luncheon program was opened with an invocation by Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton, assistant director of the Foreign Operations Administration. Mrs. Francis Sayre, wife of the veteran American diplomat, gave the closing prayer.

Chairman of the National Women's Planning Committee is Mrs. Harper Sibley, well known churchwoman, who presided. The assembly of prominent women leaders also heard unusual instrumental music as played by Mr. Shinichi Yuize, a leading Japanese koto artist. The koto has a six-and-a-half foot sounding box, with 13 silk strings stretched over its surface.

Pensions, Dividends, Sick Pay May Provide Tax Cuts

By FRANK O'BRIEN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The new law lets you exclude from your taxable income part of all income you get as retirement-type benefits, sick pay and dividends. In addition there are new provisions of dollar-and-cent interest to scholars supported on grants, to parsons and to policemen.

Possibly the biggest tax saving to the most people under the new exclusions will result from provisions for setting part of annuity or pension income aside tax free.

This applies to anyone who has annuity-type income regardless of age or whether he is formally retired from business. There are 13½ million persons in the United States over 65, plus millions of younger persons, with annuity income—nearly one-third of the tax-paying individuals in the country.

Two general rules apply in excluding this type of income:

1. You have the right to recover, tax free, from your annuity or pensions benefits as much as you have invested or paid into your benefit plan. (This doesn't mean you can exclude payments you may be making now toward future retirement benefits. You have to be getting the benefits now. And if you are, you may exclude from this benefit income an amount equal to what you have paid in the past toward it.)

2. Also, in general you may not exclude from your taxable income any part of retirement income if you did not bear part of the cost. But you did bear part of the cost, even if you made no direct contributions, if you were taxed for part or all of your employer's payments to the plan. You can usually get your cost figures from your former employer.

You will find a new schedule "E," on page 2 of form 1040, to enter your exclusion for retirement income.

In schedule "K," on page 4, you will find a place to work out any retirement income tax credit you may have.

In working out your exclusions and credits, refer to the instruction booklet furnished with your return form and—since this is a complex matter—don't hesitate to call on your local internal revenue service office for help if you get confused.

Sick Pay—The 1954 tax law allows a new type of exclusion from your taxable income for pay you receive as wages while you are off work due to sickness or injury. There are some limitations.

Sickness includes sickness during pregnancy which incapacitates you to work. The revenue service has not yet ruled definitely, however, on how it will treat maternity leave. It is possible that all paid maternity leave may be excluded from your taxable income.

Most sick pay plans fall into two groups—those of which the cost is borne by the employer, and those financed by contributions of the

Mrs. Margaret McLean, Orange, N. J. is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hugel and son Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Fenner visited Mr. and Mrs. John Swineemployee. The law makes different provisions for these:

1. The amount of sick pay you exclude from taxable income may not exceed a weekly rate of $100 if it is received under a plan financed by your employer. But no part of your pay for the first seven calendar days of sickness or injury may be excluded unless you are hospitalized for at least one day at any time during your illness.

If your sick pay does not exceed $100 a week, and you are hospitalized, the entire amount may be excluded from your taxable income. But if you are paid at a rate in excess of $100 a week the excludable amount may be determined by a formula given on page 6 of the instructions.

2. These limitations do not apply when your pay for sickness or injury is entirely attributable to your own contributions to a plan. In this case, the entire amount may be excluded.

You will find a place at line 3 on page 1 of form 1040, or at line 12 of form 1040A to enter your sick pay exclusion. Attach a statement to your return explaining the exclusion. Both husband and wife can make sick pay exclusions on a joint return.

It is possible that your employer did not withhold your income tax on excludable sick pay you had during 1954.

But it is still necessary for you to show the amount of your sick pay, in order to cut your taxable income down to the amount on which taxes have been paid. If you do not show your sick pay, you might get billed for taxes you do not owe.

Accident and health benefits—Payments to you, direct or indirect, under accident or health plans may be excluded from your taxable income when paid to cover the costs of medical care for you, your wife or husband, and your dependents.

Dividends—with limitations noted below, you can exclude from your taxable income up to $50 of income you get in the form of dividends.

If you are filing a joint return, and you and your wife each had dividend income, each can exclude dividends up to $50.

You will find a new schedule "J," at the top of page 4 of form 1040, where you work out your dividend exclusion. On form 1040A you enter your taxable income from dividends (dividend income less the portion you can exclude) on line 10 as "other income."

Dividends received any time in 1954 may be counted for the dividend exclusion. (For the tax credit on dividends, to be discussed in the next article, you may count only dividends received after July 31, 1954.)

You may not count toward dividend exclusions any dividends received from a number of organizations detailed under the heading of "dividends" on page 7 of the instructions that came with your return.

The new tax law lets you exclude payments under a scholarship or fellowship in most cases.

It also allows parsons to exclude the rental value of a parsonage supplied to them, as did the old law, and in addition allows rental cash allowances to be excluded. The cash allowance may be excluded to the extent it is used to pay rent or purchase a home.

The new law gave policemen the right to exclude from their taxable income any subsistence allowance provided to them by law, up to $5 a day.

In addition, the new law preserves previous provisions allowing life insurance death payments, gifts and inheritances to be excluded from your taxable income. It limits the exclusion for death payments from an employer to $5,000 for the death of any one employee.

Box at the right of page 6 of the instructions lists other exclusions.

Next: Tax credits.

Newest Hats Seem Daffier Than Usual

PARIS, Jan. 20 (AP)—"I'll eat my hat!" need hardly be a fanciful promise any more.

For a Paris hatter has brought out a new spring chapeau made of popcorn!

Instead of seasoning with salt, he has sparkled it up with a diamond clip.

Just to prove that Paris is as light-headed as ever, if further proof be needed, the same hatter, Monsieur Achille, has created:

A yo-yo hat, with wound-up string.

A hat decorated with two removable table tennis balls.

A hat in the form of a child's spinning top (sorry, it doesn't really spin) gaily spiraled in red, green, beige and black straw.

A hat with a pocket with a handkerchief in it.

A cloth-of-gold hat trimmed with a powder puff in front.

And a small white hat decorated with Chinese wax flowers.

Achille doesn't have a monopoly on the mad-hat market, either. One of his competitors, Claude St-Cyr, has made a sort of bucket hat that looks like a man's starched white shirtfront, complete with collar and garnet-colored tie. The crowning touch: A diamond stickpin in the tie.

Another of her brainwaves is an orange accordion hat with built-in earflaps.

The sombrero worn by Texas sheriffs have inspired the white felt headgear which will be shown by Paris hatter Jean Barthele. And the Danish designer Svend spirals one of his models like an apple peel.

But with all the French high fashion hatters getting ready to show their wares a few days before the February openings of the spring dress collections, a few general trends have emerged.

The casserole shape seems to be a leader. Though small, it has a crown larger than the head, which is supposed to make faces look little and waif-like. Baku, a very fine straw that drapes like cloth, is the favorite material for hats. Most are worn straight on the head and reveal just a little of the hairline in front.

Some big flat picture hats are shaggy with uncurled egret and ostrich feathers. Important colors include delft blue, rosy pink, beige, orange and yellow.

Atom Blasts May Reduce Storm Threat

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Atomic explosions, rather than making the weather bad, may be able to take some of the punch out of thunderstorms by "decreasing the amount of lightning," two government weathermen suggested today.

This theoretical possibility was voiced by two Weather Bureau meteorologists in describing results of the most comprehensive study yet made to determine whether atomic test blasts can influence the weather.

Weathermen L. Machta and D. L. Harris, reporting in the journal Science, said radioactivity from a blast could increase the "electric conductivity" of the air, but they added:

No observational evidence or theoretical reasons have been found for believing that changes in the electric conductivity of the air will lead to any directly observable changes in the weather other than the possibility of decreasing the amount of lightning."

In theory, they explained, under "extreme conditions," the conductivity of the free air may be increased sufficiently to interfere with the "charge separation mechanism" in thunderstorms. And this, in turn, would cause the amount of lightning produced by a given thundercloud to be reduced.

Beyond this possibility, they said, their study suggests it is "unlikely" that atomic tests have influenced the weather in any significant way, except within the test area itself.

They pointed out that their conclusion was limited to the effects of atomic explosions conducted so far at proving grounds in Nevada.

But they added that a "preliminary examination" of data regarding H-bomb tests in the Pacific "does not indicate that any obvious changes in the weather have been produced by these explosions outside of the test area."

Teacher Punishes Children, Stirs Controversy

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—A young teacher has stirred an old controversy in Britain: Does sparing the rod spoil the child?

Audrey Margaret Jeffs admitted slapping 38 of her 9-year-old pupils with a blackboard pointer to restore order in her classroom—"The girls on the legs, some of the boys on the bottoms."

"It was definitely not a light tap," the 23-year-old teacher told a court, "but it was not with my full force."

Convicted of assault and fined a pound ($2.80), she appealed and won.

Her principal, John Pigott, her-aided the teacher's vindication:

"Had we lost this case, the power of the teacher would have been very much weakened. The ground would have been cut from under our feet on the disciplinary side."

A row is shaping up in Parliament on the issue, however.

Peter Freeman, 66-year-old MP from Wales, says:

"Such punishment merely terrorizes children. It does nothing to make a bad child into a good child. This is an antiquated and pernicious system."

Pensions, Dividends, Sick Pay May Provide Tax Cuts

By FRANK O'BRIEN

AP News Features Writer

THE NEW tax law added some ways you can get part of your income out of the tax collector's reach by excluding it from your taxable income.

The new law lets you exclude from your taxable income part or all income you get as retirement-type benefits, sick pay and dividends. In addition there are new provisions of dollar-and-cent interest to scholars supported on grants, to parsons and to policemen.

Possibly the biggest tax saving to the most people under the new exclusions will result from provisions for setting part of annuity or pension income aside tax free.

This applies to anyone who has annuity-type income regardless of age or whether he is formally retired from business. There are 13½ million persons in the United States over 65, plus millions of younger persons, with annuity income—nearly one third of the tax-paying individuals in the country.

Two general rules apply in excluding this type of income:

1. You have the right to recover tax free from your annuity or pensions benefits as much as you have invested or paid into your benefit plan. (This doesn't mean you can exclude payments you may be making now toward future retirement benefits. You have to be getting the benefits now. And if you are, you may exclude from this benefit income an amount equal to what you have paid in the past toward it.)

2. Also, in general you may not exclude from your taxable income any part of retirement income if you did not bear part of the cost. But you did bear part of the cost, even if you made no direct contributions, if you were taxed for part or all of your employer's payments to the plan. You can usually get your cost figures from your former employer.

You will find a new schedule "E" on page 2 of form 1040, to enter your exclusion for retirement income.

In schedule "K," on page 4, you will find a place to work out any retirement income tax credit you may have.

In working out your exclusions and credits, refer to the instruction booklet furnished with your return form and—since this is a complex matter—don't hesitate to call on your local internal revenue service office for help if you get confused.

Sick Pay—The 1954 tax law allows a new type of exclusion from your taxable income for pay you receive as wages while you are off work due to sickness or injury. There are some limitations.

Sickness includes sickness during pregnancy which incapacitates you to work. The revenue service has not yet ruled definitely, however, on how it will treat maternity leave. It is possible that all paid maternity leave may be excluded from your taxable income.

Most sick pay plans fall into two groups—those of which the cost is borne by the employer, and those financed by contributions of the employee. The law makes different provisions for these:

1. The amount of sick pay you exclude from taxable income may not exceed a weekly rate of $100 if it is received under a plan financed by your employer. But no part of your pay for the first seven calendar days of sickness or injury may be excluded unless you are hospitalized for at least one day at any time during your illness.

If your sick pay does not exceed $100 a week, and you are hospitalized, the entire amount may be excluded from your taxable income. But if you are paid at a rate in excess of $100 a week the excludable amount may be determined by a formula given on page 6 of the instructions.

2. These limitations do not apply when your pay for sickness or injury is entirely attributable to your own contributions to a plan. In this case, the entire amount may be excluded.

You will find a place at line 3 on page 1 of form 1040, or at line 12 of form 1040A to enter your sick pay exclusion. Attach a statement to your return explaining the exclusion. Both husband and wife can make sick pay exclusions on a joint return.

It is possible that your employer did not withhold your income tax on excludable sick pay you had during 1954.

But it is still necessary for you to show the amount of your sick pay, in order to cut your taxable income down to the amount on which taxes have been paid. If you do not show your sick pay, you might get billed for taxes you do not owe.

Accident and health benefits—Payments to you, direct or indirect, under accident or health plans may be excluded from your taxable income when paid to cover the costs of medical care for you, your wife or husband, and your dependents.

Dividends—With limitations noted below, you can exclude from your taxable income up to $50 of income you get in the form of dividends.

If you are filing a joint return, and you and your wife each had dividend income, each can exclude dividends up to $50.

You will find a new schedule "J," at the top of page 4 of form 1040, where you work out your dividend exclusion. On form 1040A you enter your taxable income from dividends (dividend income less the portion you can exclude) on line 10 as "other income."

Dividends received any time in 1954 may be counted for the dividend exclusion. (For the tax credit on dividends, to be discussed in the next article, you may count only dividends received after July 31, 1954.)

You may not count toward dividend exclusions any dividends received from a number of organizations detailed under the heading of "dividends" on page 7 of the instructions that came with your return.

The new tax law lets you exclude payments under a scholarship or fellowship in most cases.

It also allows persons to exclude the rental value of a parsonage supplied to them, as did the old law, and in addition allows rental cash allowances to be excluded. The cash allowance may be excluded to the extent it is used to pay rent or purchase a home.

The new law gave policemen the right to exclude from their taxable income any subsistence allowance provided to them by law, up to $5 a day.

In addition, the new law preserves previous provisions allowing life insurance death payments, gifts and inheritances to be excluded from your taxable income. It limits the exclusion for death payments from an employer to $5,000 for the death of any one employee.

Box at the right of page 6 of the instructions lists other exclusions. Next: Tax credits.

Newest Hats Seem Daffier Than Usual

PARIS, Jan. 20 (P)—"I'll eat my hat" need hardly be a fanciful promise any more.

For a Paris hatter has brought out a new spring chapeau made of popcorn!

Instead of seasoning with salt, he has sparkled it up with a diamond clip.

Just to prove that Paris is as light-headed as ever, if further proof be needed, the same hatter, Monsieur Achille, has created:

A yo-yo hat, with wound-up string.

A hat decorated with two removable table tennis balls.

A hat in the form of a child's spinning top (sorry, it doesn't really spin) gaily spiraled in red, green, beige and black straw.

A hat with a pocket with a handkerchief in it.

A cloth-of-gold hat trimmed with a powder puff in front.

And a small white hat decorated with Chinese wax flowers.

Achille doesn't have a monopoly on the mad-hat market, either. One of his competitors, Claude St-Cyr, has made a sort of bucket hat that looks like a man's starched white shirtfront, complete with collar and garnet-colored tie. The crowning touch: A diamond stickpin in the tie.

Another of her brainwaves is an orange accordion hat with built-in earring.

The sombreros worn by Texas sheriffs have inspired the white felt headgear which will be shown by Paris hatter Jean Barthet. And the Danish designer Svend spirals one of his models like an apple peel.

But with all the French high fashion hatters getting ready to show their wares a few days before the February openings of the spring dress collections, a few general trends have emerged.

The casserole shape seems to be a leader. Though small, it has a crown larger than the head, which is supposed to make faces look little and waif-like. Baku, a very fine straw that drapes like cloth, is the favorite material for hats. Most are worn straight on the head and reveal just a little of the hairline in front.

Some big flat picture hats are shaggy with uncurled egret and ostrich feathers. Important colors include delft blue, rosy pink, beige, orange and yellow.

Atom Blasts May Reduce Storm Threat

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (P)—Atomic explosions, rather than making the weather bad, may be able to take some of the punch out of thunderstorms by "decreasing the amount of lightning," two government weathermen suggested today.

This theoretical possibility was voiced by two Weather Bureau meteorologists in describing results of the most comprehensive study yet made to determine whether atomic test blasts can influence the weather.

Presbyterian Congregation Elects Officers

Four new deacons, one new deaconess, and two new trustees were elected at the annual congregational meeting of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church held on Wednesday night following the family night supper.

Newly-elected deacons include Joseph Kovarik, G. W. Wakefield, William Altomero and John LeBar Jr. New deaconess is Mrs. Henry Kresge, and the new trustees are Dr. Elton Denning and Norman Dietrich. At the same time four elders were re-elected as ruling members of the session: Jonas T. May, Horace R. Westbrook, Gordon L. Coy, and Wilson Allegar. Russell Harmon was re-elected to the board of trustees and Mrs. Steward Shiffer and Mrs. T. F. Rhodes as deaconesses. All were for three-year terms.

Rev. John A. Bollier was moderator and Jonas T. May was named clerk of the congregational meeting. Annual reports of the organizations within the church were presented in mimeographed form, and comments were made on the reports by the officers of each group.

The reports showed that the congregation now numbers 808 members with 39 new members joining during the year; 17 moving to other communities; and 8 deaths. There were 13 infant baptisms. The church school has a membership of 369.

The financial report showed that the congregation was contributing more than half as much in church benevolences as they are to the support of the local church. Local congregational receipts were $21,063; special receipts, mostly for the building fund, amounted to $4,090; and the congregational total benevolence was $14,901.

At the meeting of the corporation which followed the congregational meeting, Jere Stofflet, president of the board of trustees, presided and Dr. Claude Leister, served as clerk.

"Whenever I leave the sifter I ask her to please take telephone messages. When I return she will say something like 'your sifter is ill and they want you to call right away.' I have five sisters scattered all over the globe so I don't have the faintest idea where the call originated."

A young sifter has this to say: "One couple I am very fond of tempts me to quit them cold. They tell me they will be home at nine o'clock and show up at twelve. This is unfair, especially when I have to go to school the next day. They don't even bother to call me saying they will be late."

Here's a pet peeve from another mother . . . "I have a standing request of baby sitters and one out of ten observes it. I merely ask them to put the light out and cover the baby ten minutes after she falls asleep. Invariably I arrive home and either the light is on or the cover is off or both have been forgotten. A sifter will get wrapped up in a good book or TV and forget everything else."

"One family I know blames everything on the sifter" puts one sub-deb who explains: "Just the other day I sat at their house and what happens? The mother walks in and says 'I hope you haven't been twirling the TV dials, we've been having trouble with the set.' The father opened the refrigerator door saying 'I hope there is something left for a snack. I'm starved,' looking at me significantly. I threaten each time not to go to their house again but I always weaken."

Hand Protector

Household gloves are important if you want to protect your hands from prolonged soaking in water and the drying effects of detergents. Wear them to prevent bruises and cuts, to keep fingernails from breaking and nailpolish from chipping. There are all types to choose from, including the popular blue neoprene gloves which are watertight and lined with a knitted fabric to absorb perspiration.

Baby Sitting Profession Has Its Art

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures

Baby sitting is a mighty lucrative profession for young or old. Work is easy to come by, provides good pay and gives a nice change of indoor scenery.

It is not always a peachie assignment for sitters, however. And mom finds fault too. Sometimes the complaints are legitimate. Here are some that both sides might consider. Says one sifter:

"I've been sitting at Jones' house for 5 years. She gives me instructions when she leaves and the telephone number where she can be reached. I have emergency numbers for doctors, firemen, policemen, neighbors. But still she calls me about every 10 minutes, usually waking the children up. I just about get them to sleep and relax when b-r-r-r, the bell again."

On the other hand a mother offers this . . .

"Whenever I leave the sifter I ask her to please take telephone messages. When I return she will say something like 'your sifter is ill and they want you to call right away.' I have five sisters scattered all over the globe so I don't have the faintest idea where the call originated."

A young sifter has this to say: "One couple I am very fond of tempts me to quit them cold. They tell me they will be home at nine o'clock and show up at twelve. This is unfair, especially when I have to go to school the next day. They don't even bother to call me saying they will be late."

Newlyweds Honored At Reception

A wedding reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Custard was held at Shaffer's Inn, Milford Road, on Thursday night, January 13. There were 100 guests, relatives and friends there to honor the newlyweds.

The rooms had been decorated with pink and white streamers and large white wedding bells. A three-tier wedding cake formed the centerpiece and the bride's table was banked with bouquets of mixed flowers, the gift of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Lila Mandell.

Round and square dancing to the music of Arch Possinger's band was the highlight of the party. A buffet supper was served.

The newlyweds received many gifts from those attending and also from those who couldn't be there because of the bad weather. Mr. and Mrs. Custard will be at their new home at Craig's Meadow after March 1.

What Is Ceramic?

Anything made of baked clay whether porcelain or earthenware may be called ceramic, a word taken from the Greek "keramos" meaning pot. Ceramic bodies are either translucent and vitreous porcelain, stoneware which may or may not be translucent, and pottery which is porous and opaque.

Just let children do as they please in order to keep them quiet. One mother says:

"If those guardians would realize how many days it takes Mom to get youngsters back on an even keel after a sifter has led them much themselves to sleep, they'd be more considerate. It would be much easier for all concerned if the rules were observed. Kids might yammer at first but once they settle down in their routine pattern, that's all there would be to it."

"I wish all of our patients had cases like this," my nurse commented one morning as she slipped a fresh nightgown over my head and handed me my green train case. "You've no idea how many times a day I rush to answer a bell and find it's a patient who wants me to locate her bottle of cologne."

The case she referred to was an inexpensive one picked up at special price in our Wyckoff luggage department some time ago for a mere $2.98. As you can guess, it is perfectly plain inside, except for a large, clear mirror in the lid. Nevertheless it has proved its worth on countless occasions, both to the children and myself.

I hadn't really expected to land in a hospital when I visited Philadelphia, but as a precaution I took the empty case along. Past experience has shown me that we women cannot possibly exist, sick or well, without a frantic array of bottles, tubes, and jars . . . and everyone should know that a busy nurse has neither the time nor inclination to round up one's feminine fripperies every fifteen minutes.

Frankly, I was grateful for the task of getting organized when the doctor's verdict was in . . . packing the little green case with things I'd need at hand was a pretty thing to do. Into it went a pretty black container of "My Sin" talc, to follow those refreshing alcohol rubs . . . my favorite toothpaste . . . tooth brush . . . tweezers . . . a nail file . . . a bottle of "Lily of the Valley" cologne . . . my hairbrush, comb, and bobby pins . . . cleansing cream, and makeup for those days of convalescence when one is determined to look better than she feels . . . a box of tissues . . . some handkerchiefs . . . a few packages of Life Savers . . . a tiny box filled with stamps . . . a ballpoint pen . . . and a few sheets of stationery and envelopes.

Fitting everything neatly into position so they wouldn't jingle was something like putting a jigsaw puzzle together . . . but everything worked out beautifully, to the satisfaction of the nurses and myself. When anything was needed it could be at hand in a moment . . . it was just a matter of lifting one case from the bedside table onto the bed, and busying oneself for long periods on cream with the nail file or the cold cream jar. "Every woman needs plenty of cream after an operation," my nurse suggested.

"She's usually pretty dehydrated just as you are." Certainly my skin gulped up all the oil I could lavish upon it.

"There's only one thing you missed bringing," she continued. "You need a hair dressing—something like Suave." She was right too—my waves had disappeared completely, and my rebellious locks were enough to cause my temperature to soar. Next time (heaven forbid) I'll remember! And you remember too, if you are contemplating a visit to the hospital. There's no doubt about it, when Dolly Erdman sold me my little green case, she did me a wonderful favor . . . even earned me the accolade of being a "wonderful patient."

Monroe Milk Co-Operative Distributes $5,000 Dividends

THE MONROE COUNTY Milk Producers Co-Operative Association at Brodheadsville has distributed over $5000 in dividends to preferred stockholders, it was announced yesterday by General Manager Ellis Griffith. Various businessmen and farmers of the area received the funds.

Griffith said the payments represented the clearing up of back dividends at 5% cumulative interest. The individual distributions ranged from $7.50 to a high of $300 for the 160 stockholders. The average yearly dividends in the association are $1500.

"We are now in the process of increasing ice cream production due to big demands for the products," the general manager commented. A new pasteurization plant has also been installed at the dairy.

An enlargement of office facilities is another project being carried on at the busy Co-Operative building. This work is expected to be finished within a month. The Association plans to hold an open house when these new improvements are completed.

"Other plans of expansion are pending for the future," stated Griffith.

A new city directory for the 1955-56 period will be ready by July.

The publisher is the Callins Kelp Directory Co. of Binghamton, N. Y. A sales representative of the firm has been already assigned here.

Enumerators will follow for a survey covering about ten weeks. The directory is published every two years. The firm handling the project is a member of the Association of North American Directory Publishers.

Stroudsburg Entertains Emmaus In Home Gymnasium

Mountaineers Seek Second Circuit Win

STROUDSBURG High will attempt to snap a three-game losing streak in the Lehigh Valley League tonight when the Mountaineers oppose Emmaus on the West Main St. court. It will be the sixth circuit outing for both teams.

The Mountaineers opened the campaign with four straight wins, but since that time have lost six of seven outings, including four of five circuit outings.

In their last outing the Mountaineers dropped the now famous 39-32 decision to unbeaten Palmerston, a club that has won all 14 games this season.

Stroudsburg has lost to Catasauqua, Slatington, Northampton and Palmerston, while registering its lone victory at the expense of Whitehall.

Emmaus has defeated only two Lehigh Valley teams and has also suffered four setbacks. But the Emmaus contingent scored the same number of field goals as Palmerston in the first half meeting of the two teams. The undefeated Bombers went on to win the favorable verdict on foul shots. Ken Mayer, a graduate of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, coaches Emmaus.

Coach John Kupiec, Stroudsburg mentor, is expected to stick with virtually the same team that has opened virtually every game thus far this season. This means that Dave Nevil and Doug Shook will handle the forward duties and Dick Little will be at center. Although Kupiec wasn't definite about his starting guards they probably will be Don Diebler and Francis "Sonny" Diebler.

Wallie Adelman, Dick Hintze, Bob Metzger and Tom Metzger are other Stroudsburg cagers likely to see action tonight.

Stroudsburg finishes its first half play next Tuesday at Lehigh.

Other Lehigh Valley League games on the agenda tonight will feature Whitehall at Northampton, Lehigh at Palmerston and Slatington will invade Catasauqua in the number one game of the night.

Farrell High Among Best

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20 (AP)—A new edition of a Pennsylvania high school basketball record book shows that the performers of Farrell's 1954 state champions team high over the 35 years the PIAA has conducted a statewide tournament.

The Steelers, victor over Chester in the title game last March, in four tourney games scored the fourth best total of points in state tournament history.

The 144-page 1955 record book, third annual edition, contains pictures of all 11 class "A" district champions as well as a photo of the class "B" and "C" state winners.

Five regional editions of the book, which contain complete scoring records, box scores and statistics on the tournaments, were printed this year in Allentown, Pittsburgh, Erie, Chester and Sharon. The book is published by E. Tranel Rowland of Bryn Mawr.

Furman Threatens Collegiate Basketball Scoring Records

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Major college basketball teams have been bombarding the hoop at a record clip and if Furman continues its present pace there will be new marks in the books at the season's close.

This was reported by the NCAA Service Bureau today as Furman led the scoring parade with an average of 98.3 points a game, well above the record high of 91.7 set by Furman last season.

Connecticut, averaging 93.9, is above the record, too, while DePaul is rolling along at 91.7, right even with the record.

On the other hand, San Francisco is proving an exceptional team on defense and has been holding its opponents to fewer points than any club in the last three years—an average of 48.0.

Figures for team offense and defense include games through Tuesday, January 18.

Wall Among Leaders At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 20 (AP)—Big Tommy Bolt cut loose with seven straight birdies, shot a 7-under par 29 for the first nine and finished with a 64 today to take the lead in the first round of the $15,000 San Diego Open golf tournament.

Later in the day a lesser known young professional, Paul McGuire of Wichita, Kan., turned in a 21-34-65 to share honors with the temperamental Texan from Houston.

Bolt, pleased with his performance but huffy because he fancied cameramen were too observant as he lined up a putt or two, finished eight strokes under par for the Mission Valley Country Club.

Nine birdies and one bogey dotted his card for the 67-66 - yard journey of the par 36-36-72 hole course.

McGuire, at 26 a professional for five years but a comparative newcomer to tournament headlines, had eight birdies and one bogey.

Four strokes back of Bolt were six pros bunched at 68. They were Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa.; Wally Ulrich, Rochester, Minn.; Henry Williams Jr., Reading, Pa.; Bud Holscher, Santa Monica, Calif.; and Shelley Mayfield, Chicopee, Mass.

The people's choice as far as San Diego was concerned remained a home town product, Gene Littler of Palm Springs, Calif., who won the tournament a year ago when he was still an amateur. Littler posted a 69 to head up no less than nine pros in the 69 bracket.

Varsity 'S' May Assist With Fence

DISCUSSION of further construction of the new Gordon Giffels Field fence, a project begun last summer, highlighted last night's meeting of the Varsity "S" Club at Stroudsburg's Municipal Building.

Sam Everitt, club president and vice president of the Stroudsburg School Board, announced that the board was in favor of a work plan adopted at an earlier meeting of the Varsity "S" organization.

The Varsity "S" Club has volunteered to do the labor in furthering the cinder-block construction, if the school board will furnish the needed material. Definite action along this line will be taken at the April meeting.

Tom Somers, chairman of the by-laws committee, made a report to the gathering of approximately 25 men in attendance.

The club discussed the football picture at Stroudsburg High now that Junior High grid activity will enter the picture next season.

It was agreed that membership cards should be sent to all graduates of Stroudsburg High. The club also voted to obtain a list of all lettermen at the W. Main St. school this year.

The club has decided to stage a play in the spring after receiving the news that the Community Chorus would be unable to take part in a concert planned for the near future. The concert plans were dropped for the time being.

It was revealed that the Community Chorus is holding a concert of its own soon.

Earl Groner, superintendent of Stroudsburg schools, and Alfred W. Munson, high school principal, will be invited to the next meeting to speak on the new athletic policy at Stroudsburg High.

The next meeting will be held in the Municipal Building on Thursday, February 17.

A's Move Equipment

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics are gone now—bag and baggage.

Two moving vans donated by a Kansas City firm carted off the final reminders of the Athletics from Connie Mack Stadium today.

Roy Mack, who will maintain an office in the park as the club's local representative, supervised the moving job which stripped the park of all remembrances of the departed American League club.

Roy wanted to send some of the souvenirs to the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., but Arnold Johnson, who purchased the team and moved it to Kansas City, said he would like to have them there for a few years.

Maryland Denies Grid Survey Report

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Jan. 20 (AP)—Dean Geary F. Epley said today investigation shows no case of anyone on the University of Maryland athletic staff ever violating Atlantic Coast Conference or National Collegiate Athletic Assn. rules on recruiting athletes.

A report by a survey team from the Middle States Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools, made public earlier this week, said Maryland had violated the rules.

Epley said today the report had been misconstrued.

He recited in detail the circumstances under which Tom Steff of Brownsville, Pa., came to Maryland on an athletic scholarship in 1952 after first enrolling at Allegheny College at Meadville, Pa.

"All action taken in the case of Tom Steff was in absolute conformity with the recruiting rules of the ACC and the NCAA," Epley said.

Epley is chairman of the faculty athletic council at Maryland, chairman of the athletic board, a member of the committee on admissions, guidance and adjustment, a member of the committee on scholarships and student aid, dean of men, director of student welfare, and in charge of part-time student jobs on the campus.

"The Middle States report said 'such interlocking arrangements have obvious dangers in them.'"

Epley said the Steff case was the only one cited by the middle states investigators and "we feel we have given the necessary answers."

He said he had contacted Jim Weaver, commissioner of the ACC, and A. E. Moore, president of the NCAA, and both said no complaint had ever been made to them about Maryland.

Epley said signed statements he has shown these are the facts in the Steff case:

"Tom Steff was introduced to Jack Hennemer (Maryland line coach) by his coach, Warren Fritsch, after a high school all-star game (at Pittsburgh) on the night of Aug. 15, 1952."

"At this time Coach Fritsch arranged a meeting of Coach Hennemer and Steff at his high school the following morning."

Hennemer, after examining Steff's high school record, informed him that his splendid academic record would qualify him for admission to the University of Maryland if he chose to apply.

"He also let him know that if he applied and was accepted, he was absolutely certain that he had all the qualifications for a scholarship which he knew to be open at the University of Maryland that would afford him complete expenses."

"Coach Hennemer made no mention of any set financial figure. He informed Steff that he would have to present an application to the faculty scholarship committee, and accompany this application with letters of recommendation on his general character and leadership qualifications from his high school principal and three other leading citizens of Brownsville who were not related to him."

"Finding young Steff interested in pre-med and assuring him that he would have a better opportunity to gain admission to a medical school, especially Maryland University's own medical school, by graduating from the University of Maryland's undergraduate school, the prospective student and Coach Hennemer went to Steff's home to visit with his parents."

"Here Coach Hennemer learned that the father of the boy had a brother who lived within a few blocks of the University of Maryland. The prospective student had visited the uncle several times and had admired the University of Maryland. Upon Coach Hennemer's suggestion that the family visit our school, the entire Steff family drove to College Heights Estates, which adjoins College Park, the following weekend and visited in the home of Frank Steff, the uncle of the prospective student."

"After visiting with Dean Leon Smith of the College of Arts and Sciences, concerning his prospective entrance to the pre-medical course at Maryland and Coach Jim Tatum, director of athletics and head football coach at the University of Maryland, it was the arrangement of all concerned that Steff would apply immediately for admission to Maryland and for his scholarship at Maryland."

"His application arrived here around August 19th and he was accepted for admission as a freshman here to enter on September 18th. He had not attended school at Allegheny and he reported here for a week of orientation on September 11th."

Basilio Risks Title Hopes Against Mueller In Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 20 (AP)—Carmen Basilio, the number one welter contender who hopes to fight champion Johnny Saxton for the title April 1, takes on rugged Peter Mueller, a 155-pounder from Cologne, Germany, tomorrow night in a 10-round match at War Memorial Auditorium.

Julius Helfand, new chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, will make his first upstate visit to see the bout, scheduled for 10 p. m. (EST). It will receive the usual Friday night radio-TV network coverage (NBC).

With Syracuse backed off the TV screen, co-promoters Norm Rothschild and the International Boxing Club predict a sellout crowd of 8,700 people and a gross gate of about $40,000.

Basilio, son of a Canastota, N. Y. onion farmer, is a red hot local favorite and a solid 14 to 5 choice in the betting.

Easton Catholic Earns Nod Over Pope Pius Squad, 64-51

ROSETO—Easton Catholic High's junior varsity inflicted the sixth straight basketball defeat on Pope Pius X High last night, 64-51, here on the Roseto public school court.

In the preliminary contest the Pope Pius junior varsity won over the Pope Pius Junior High School 40-31.

Mike Caponigro led the losing team in scoring by coming up with 20 points, while Sam Janetti and Sal Lopiano assisted with 13 and 10 respectively.

Easton dominated the first three quarters and were too far out in front to catch, even though the host team held a 20-13 edge in the last quarter.

The winning club held a 26-23 edge in field goals and made good on 12 of 25 foul shots. Pope Pius converted only five of 25 charity heaves.

Pope Pius plays Blainston junior varsity on this same court next Friday.

ALTHOUGH Palmerton's "death-like" freezing tactics Tuesday night were devised only to beat Stroudsburg, they could be taken as a form of retaliation according to a story passed on to this column yesterday by T. Manning Curtis, athletic director at Stroudsburg High. According to the former outstanding cage mentor from W. Main St., Stroudsburg once pulled a similar stunt on the Bombers.

Curtis' memory couldn't pinpoint the year, but Stroudsburg went into a similar "freeze" against Palmerton somewhere between the seasons of 1925 and 1929. I don't mean the "freeze" lasted four years, but it took place during that period. The game was played at the old armory, which featured a low ceiling and made shooting long shots an almost impossible task. Stroudsburg went into a slight lead at halftime and Palmerton, then coached by Bill Braucher, went into a zone defense. The Curtis coached Mountaineers went into their "freeze" and held the ball at mid-court for approximately 15 minutes.

Stroudsburg went on to win the game by a score of something like 19-13. So the demonstration put on by Palmerton on Tuesday shouldn't have been entirely strange to the veteran cage fans of this area. The late Charley Taylor, brilliant dribbler of the past, was a member of the Stroudsburg quintet that upended Palmerton by using the "deep freeze" as its chief weapon. Many Stroudsburg fans thought the actions of Palmerton's coach Vin Evans were to be condemned.

This column can't see how the actions of the Palmerton mentor can be condemned. True, the display put on by Palmerton isn't crowd pleasing to say the least. It does tend to make a farce out of the game. But one must consider the fact that Stroudsburg's zone defense forced Palmerton's hand, especially since the Bombers are so desperately shooting for a new victory record at the present time. The fact that the Mountaineers didn't come out of their tight zone prolonged the Palmerton "freeze."

I think John Kupiec, Stroudsburg mentor, played the situation just right and his eagerness to be congratulated for carrying out orders to the letter. The zone defense didn't speed up the game, but it was the only answer to Palmerton's high geared offense. A break or two in the last six minutes of play may have made it possible for Stroudsburg to pull an upset victory out of the fire. As it was the Bombers rolled to their 14th win without a defeat this season.

Actions of a coach or a team can't be condemned as long as both act within the rules. Palmerton didn't break any sort of rule with its stalling tactics in last Tuesday's Lehigh Valley League tussle. Although the basketball rules are annually knocked around like a ping-pong ball, nobody has been far sighted enough to avert an occasion such as that which featured the Stroudsburg - Palmerton tussle. Maybe we need the 24-second rule now being used so successfully by the pros.

The fact that the recent game shifted into low gear ratio in the second half may have averted an ugly situation or two. I say this because the two officials assigned to the game were definitely below caliber and were lost at sea in the first half, which featured a fast moving, quick shooting brand of basketball. Both officials lost control of the game early and if the second half would have followed the same course the boys in the striped shirts would have been out of business.

Offensive averages took a beating to say the least last Tuesday. Palmerton was averaging 75 points per ball game prior to the clash with Stroudsburg, while the opposition had been scoring at a rate of 44.6 tallies a contest. The defensive average was helped, but offensive figures took one awful beating. Jim Oravec, Palmerton center, was averaging 16.2 markers a game, but against Stroudsburg he was limited to six points. Bob Miky, who had a 15.8 average, scored only four points against the Mountaineers.

Stroudsburg lost the game, but the Mountaineers also gained a measure of satisfaction. The Kupiepen are the first to hold Palmerton under 60 points a game this season and the W. Main St. quintet became the first team to make Palmerton's regular play the entire game in the present campaign. Palmerton had instituted a policy of multiple substitution, but those plans had to be junked against the Mountaineers.

East Stroudsburg Quintet Invades Bangor Tonight

Both Teams Feature Same League Marks

EAST STROUDSBURG and Bangor High Schools will complete the first half of the Lehigh-Northampton Basketball League campaign tonight battling to see which is the seventh and which is the eighth place contingent in the standings.

The junior varsity contest will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the main event at approximately 7:45 p.m.

Each team will take a circuit record of one victory and six defeats into the contest. Each of tonight's foes scored their win over Pen Argyl, currently the only club not to register a victory this season.

East Stroudsburg, against all opposition this season, has won five and lost eight contests. Bangor, battling the entire basketball world, has two victories and nine setbacks on its record.

The Cavaliers have played in-and-out basketball all season, while Bangor is in the rebuilding stages under Coach John Heard. The Slaters lost heavily by graduation last June.

East Stroudsburg, under the guidance of Coach Dick Forster, will probably answer the starting whistle tonight with Jim Kinler and either Barry Lambert or Bill Ponsyl at forward. Danny Marvin, who tallied 20 points against Hellertown, will operate at center. Bob "Red" Kupiszewski is expected to be at one guard, while either Dick Gray or Bill Sommers handles the other defensive post.

Bangor will still be without injured Wayne Pysker. Heard's starting array will probably feature Don Keat and Art "Bucky" Parsons as the forwards and Jim Warrick at center. Ronnie Everett and Jim Freeman most likely will open as the guards. "Jabby" Williams will also see plenty of action as a guard tonight. Dave Miller, out of uniform because of illness, is also ready for action again.

Both teams enjoy an open date next Tuesday, but return to action next Friday. East Stroudsburg invades Parkland next Friday and Bangor plays host to Nazareth.

Other games on the agenda tonight will pit Wilson Borough against Pen Argyl, Fountain Hill, against Parkland and Coplay will battle Hellertown. Coplay and Fountain Hill are currently tied for first place in the standings.

Pirates Sign Three Players

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20 (P)—First baseman Tony Bartirome and infielder Reno DeBenedetti today returned their signed 1955 contracts to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bartirome, fresh from a two-year Army hitch in Germany, hit .229 in 124 games with the Pirates in 1952—his first season in the big leagues.

DeBenedetti, who resides in San Francisco, was purchased from Denver of the Western League last season. He batted .329 in 147 games with the Bears.

The Pirates also announced the signing of outfielder John C. Powers, 25, Powers, who lives in Birmingham, Ala., batted .167 for Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League early last year and then was sold to New Orleans of the Southern Assn. where he had a .253 mark.

Don Wismer

Monroe County League Lists Three Games

POCONO is the next team scheduled to try and dislodge Coolbaugh from first place in the current standings of the Monroe County Basketball and the attempt will take place tonight, on the former's home court in Tannersville.

Coolbaugh, coached by Don Wismer, will enter tonight's encounter with a record of five victories and only one setback. Pocono on the other hand claims two victories and has suffered four reversals.

Chestnut Hill, tied with Barrett for second place at the present time, will invade the home court of Tobyhanna Township, Pocono Pines, tonight. The blue and gold clad charges of Coach Bill Frear must win if they hope to keep pace with the league leading Coolbaugh club.

THIS will counter with high scoring Willard Costanzo and company, with hopes high of ending a six game losing streak. Chestnut Hill owns four victories and has lost two times.

Barrett will take a similar record of four and two against Polk tonight, on the latter's home court in Kresgeville. Polk's record is three favorable nois and the same number of the unfavorable variety at the present time.

The visiting Barrett team finds itself in the position of having to win to stay in the race.

In each case the junior varsity encounter is listed for 7:15 p. m. and the varsity clash for approximately 8:30 p. m.

Katt Accepts Terms

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (P)—The New York Giants stowed away the signed contract of catcher Ray Katt today.

Williamsport Fans Hold Baseball Key

WILLIAMSPORT, Jan. 20 (P)—The Williamsport Area Baseball Corp. will begin a $50,000 preseason ticket sale next week "to assure baseball in Williamsport in 1955."

Directors of the corporation, which operated this city's Class "A" Eastern League entry last year, approved the advance ticket sale plan at a meeting yesterday.

Joseph H. Mosser, president of the corporation, said the directors deferred a decision as to whether they will operate the team this season pending the outcome of the ticket sale.

He said definite action would be taken 30 days after the drive opens "early next week."

The corporation operated the team last season but finished about $7,000 in the red. Mosser said the 1954 deficit is the main roadblock slowing a definite decision to operate the team this year. Although had a working agreement with the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League, Mosser said the Pittsburgh agreement is still in effect.

Bangor Girls Play Today

BANGOR — Bangor High School's girls' basketball team will shoot for its second win of the current East Penn Girls' League season today when the Slaters battle Bethlehem High in Bethlehem.

The game is scheduled to take place at 4 p.m.

Bangor defeated Pen Argyl in a league contest last week after dropping successive games to Allentown Central Catholic and Bethlehem Catholic.

The Bangor contingent took the measure of the Slatington High School girls in a non-league clash to open the season.

Robinson Will Rest Ten Days, Study Films Before Making Final Decision On Comeback

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (P)—Sugar Ray Robinson will spend the next 10 days pondering whether he should quit his comeback try after his decisive defeat by Ralph "Tiger" Jones at the Chicago Stadium last night.

Robinson planned to return to New York late today and his talking was done from his hotel room by his manager, Joe Glaser.

"Sugar feels good, much better than he thought he would," Glaser said. "I've talked to him all morning and my advice was for him to go back to New York, rest up 10 days, look at the kinescoped films of the fight and then make up his mind whether he should continue boxing."

Last night, after Jones relentlessly battered the former middleweight and welterweight champion into his fourth defeat in 143 fights, Robinson said he thought he'd like a couple of more fights to determine whether he really is through as a boxer.

Glaser, who managed Robinson in his 31-month career as a song and dance man, reminded an interviewer that he was against Jones as an opponent from the start.

"I knew he was too tough after Ray started his comeback by beating Joe Rindone in Detroit two weeks ago," said Glaser. "Sure, Jones lost five in a row, but they were close or bad decisions against good boys."

"As good as Ray looked against Rindone, that's how bad he looked against Jones. Ray can't explain it. I can't explain it. Maybe he overtrained. Anyway, after the fourth round, Ray was fighting only on sheer courage and defensive skill."

Glaser said Robinson was without any bruises or marks today, although his right eyebrow and nose were dripping blood during most of the bout.

Junior High Cagers To Clash Today

A "LITTLE Battle of the Boroughs" will take place at East Stroudsburg Junior High School today when Stroudsburg Junior High's cagers cross the dividing line to do battle with their arch rival.

The tap-off is scheduled to take place at 4 p.m.

Stroudsburg, coached by John Whithead, will invade the enemy's gymnasium with a record of two victories and three defeats.

The Mountaineers opened the present campaign by scoring successive victories over Belvidere and Lehighton. But on Tuesday of this week the W. Main St. quintet suffered its lone defeat at Blairstown, N. J., at the hands of Blairstown Junior High.

East Stroudsburg will oppose Stroudsburg with a mark of one victory and a single setback. The Cavaliers dropped their opening game to Pocono Junior High, but came back with a one-sided verdict over Lehighton on Wednesday of this week.

Bowler To Miss First Tourney

HARRISBURG, Jan. 2 (P)—For the first time in 15 years Mrs. Sally Zimmerman will not participate in the annual Harrisburg bowling tournament which begins here next week.

Former Oklahoma Football Star Quits Canadian Ranks

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20 (P)—Big Jim Weatherall, an Oklahoma football player from Texas who went to Canada as a coming home to Philadelphia.

Confusing? Well, Weatherall lives in Amarillo, Tex., played football at the University of Oklahoma, was drafted for pro football by the Philadelphia Eagles, but decided to try the Canadian brand of the gridiron.

The 25-year-old tackle signed a 1955 contract here today to play for the Eagles of the National Football League for $3,000 less than he got last year from the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Inter-Provincial Football League. The natural question is, why?

Weatherall, a 6-4 giant who doesn't look his 240 pounds, answered without hesitation, "To make a name for myself in American pro football. In Canada I'm a nobody, just another American playing football. I hope to coach when my playing days are over. If I make good in pro ball in the United States, my chances of landing a good coaching job are much better."

Then why go to Canada in the first place, Weatherall was asked. He smiled and then said, "more money."

Three Wayne Tilts Slated

HONESDALE — Three Wayne County Conference basketball games will be played tonight and each will play an important role in the pennant chase now underway.

In each case the junior varsity tussle will begin at 7:30 p.m. and the varsity game will take over the center of the stage approximately one hour later.

Greene-Dreher-Sterling High would like very much to even its conference record at two wins and two defeats as the Stags play host to Honesdale in Newfoundland.

The Stags opened the circuit season by bowing to Waymart and Moscow, but last Friday took the measure of Lake Ariel for the first circuit win.

Moscow, the only defeated team in the fold at the present time, will battle Pleasant Mount, on the latter's home court.

Lake Ariel and Hawley, a pair of annual troublemakers, will tangle on the Hawley hardwood.

Next Tuesday Pleasant Mount plays at Lake Ariel and Hawley invades Damascus.

Redlegs Ink Three

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20 (P)—The Cincinnati Redlegs today announced that catchers Hobie Landrith and Ed Bailey have signed their 1955 contracts. Tom Acker, pitcher, also came to terms.

Yankees Sign Skowron

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (P)—Bill Skowron, who may be the New York Yankees' regular first baseman this season, has signed his 1955 contract.

Krechel Leads Court Loop In Scoring

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Henry Krechel, West End forward, is currently leading the Pocono Mountains Basketball League in scoring with 173 points. The former Polk star has accounted for 74 field goals and 25 foul shot conversions in six games.

Scoring figures were released last night by Kenneth Barnes, a resident of this locality. Barnes has volunteered to serve as a statistician for the league this season.

Ray Steele, center for Gray's Chevrolet, is in second place with 133 markers in five games. The former East Stroudsburg High standout made good on 58 field goals and 17 foul shots.

Henry "Hank" Stetler, veteran forward for the Stroudsburg Poconos, is third in the scoring race at the present time with 127 tallies in five games. Stetler has registered 51 field goals and 25 free throws.

Two Steelers Enter Fold

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20 (P)—Two Pittsburgh Steeler football players, currently in the Army, today returned their signed contracts for the 1955 season.

They are quarterback Ted Marchibroda, 21, the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice in 1953, and end Jack McClaren, also 21, a rookie.

Marchibroda played in five games with the Steelers before he was drafted into the Army. He hails from Franklin, Pa., and played his college football at St. Bonaventure and Detroit.

McClaren, a native of Panama City, Fla., played with Bethune-Cookman College at Daytona Beach before he entered the Army.

Stock List Advances Moderately

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (U)—The stock market made its third straight advance today, but the showing was not very convincing. There was little vigor behind the rise, and it never got very far. There were rather wide moves by a few stocks, but the great majority showed narrow changes either way.

Most of the time today the market was narrowly mixed. Aircrafts were higher throughout. In the afternoon the market began to firm a little with the steels prominent in the rise. At the close, however, the steels were mixed.

President Eisenhower's economic message was in line with expectations. His words of caution against stock speculation certainly were mirrored in the hesitant cautious action of today's market. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 20 cents at $151.10. The total rise for the past three days has been $2.30 as compared with a fall of $3.50 on Monday.

The average now stands at $151.10. That is $5.30 under the 1955 peak on the first trading day of the year. The all-time high was $157.70 on Sept. 3, 1929.

The industrial component of the average advanced 40 cents and utilities were up 60 cents while the railroads lost 80 cents.

There were only 1,212 individual issues traded, lowest since Armistice Day, with 525 advancing and 441 declining. There were 41 new highs and no new lows for 1954-55.

Volume came to 2,210,000 shares, lowest since Nov. 1 of last year when it was 1,790,000 shares. The total yesterday was 2,760,000 shares.

The American Stock Exchange was mostly higher on volume of a million shares, 80,000 less than yesterday. Higher were Cessna Aircraft, Consolidated Mining, Hazeltine, International Petroleum, and Woodley Petroleum. Lower were Humble Oil, Niles-Bement-Pond, and Pantepec Oil. Bonds were mixed. U. S. government issues in the over the counter market were mixed.
